Recycle.

Gallery recycles all its storage and packing materials, boxes and any old magazines that are returned. We don't get that many fortunately. We love to know our readers hang on to previous copies but when you move or find that they're taking up too much space, drop them down to the recycling bins in the car park off the Esplanade. If you want to find out more about recycling, call 01534 448986. We put this on the green strip to look eco innit.. That's smart!

It amazes me how many people head away from Jersey in July and August. Long evenings, beaches, barbies... this summer we even got the sun. What's not to like? Even September seems to manage to provide us with consistently sunny Jersey Live weekends. I understand that, for a lot of people, there are the complications of school, kids, holiday rotas... things that make it the obvious choice of holiday booking timeframe. But Jersey IS a holiday destination.

OK, so maybe it's not as busy and bustling as it was for yuppies in the 80s, but it's still in good shape. Family beach holidays in the sun are but a 10 minute car ride away, much to the envy of any urban landlocked town dwelling dogs in the UK. Warmest place in the British Isles, b*tches. Plus, if you're local, you know the island, you know the benefits and you understand what a filter in turn is (for the most part). That means that most of us get a lot more out of it than people that view our glorious Isle through the window of a grotty blue coach.

But that was then, and this is now. As I type the wind is howling, the rain is lashing and despite promises of a singular sunny day before the month's out, I don't have much hope. I've lined up winter coats. I walked to work in the lashing rain. Yes, it's the time of year that Jersey goes under cover. Waking up in the morning means staying under the covers and, if you have a house as cold as mine, staying under them to watch TV in the evenings with only a trip to work and back, hood up, between.

But look on the bright side; you can wrap up in cozy winter coats and scarves and feel winter tech by wearing gloves that work with your phone screen. Covering up is an excuse to stand in the cold with a vin chaud and, if you spent the summer one in Jersey, an excuse for a winter holiday. So drink up, wrap up, fill in that holiday request, get it booked, get back under the covers.

GRANT RUNYON

Former Jellyfish Wrangler at the Fort Regent Aquarium, Grant Runyon entered journalism when a terrible Quasar accident left him with scarred buttocks and incapable of any feelings that aren't annoyance or heartburn. He plays Warhammer, keeps budgerigars and hopes one day to become a real human boy.

SARA FELTON

Sara performs a mystery function for us here at Gallery, and if we told you what it was we'd have to kill you. Seriously. Detectives would determine that it was Gallery, in your home or workplace, with a box of magazines that caused your death. We'll give you a clue though: it's on every page. She's also trying to uphold her recent tradition of having a photograph featured in every edition. So, ladies and gents, here she is!

JOHN DOE

The more observant amongst you will likely have realised that John Doe isn't a name generally associated with those who are deemed to be in the world of the living. Given that you're reading this, we're pretty sure that you're alive though, so why not get involved as a writer, illustrator, artist, photographer or even a fanatical groupie? The kind that brings us cake, we mean. No funny business.

JERSEY HAS ALWAYS LIKED TO THINK OF ITSELF AS A SMALL PLACE WITH BIG IDEAS. WE LIVE ON A MINUSCULE SPECK OF GRANITE FLOATING IN WHAT COULD BEST BE DESCRIBED AS FRANCE'S ARMPIT, YET WE'RE SITTING ON BANK DEPOSITS THAT WOULDN'T BE OUT OF PLACE IN SOME CENTRAL EUROPEAN NATION WHERE EVERYBODY WEARS LEDERHOSEN AND EATS FONDUE.

We have a 40 mph speed limit, but our roads crawl with spotless supercars, and despite having little in the way of serious crime the country parishes are dotted with enough caches of (perfectly legal) firearms to hold off anybody who'd come here and attempt to make off with any of our cows.

Many readers will nevertheless be surprised to learn that until the swingeing budget cuts of 2008 our Island also maintained a clandestine special operations unit that had more in common with MI6 than with the Parish Roads Committee. Created in the aftermath of the German occupation and initially funded by a special levy on tractor diesel, this ultra-secret cadre of elite operatives existed in the shadows of local history until operational papers were discovered in the photocopying bin at Cyril Le Marquand House. These unknown men and women risked their lives to maintain the safety and neutrality of our unassuming Island, and it's a mark of how successful they were that despite a string of explosions, assassinations and double-parking on the St Aubin's inner road the population at large has never suspected their existence.

As individuals they will never be known (if only because they could never agree on who got to use the code name 'Jim Bergerac') but as a team their exploits will live on through history. Revealed here for the first time are a selection of some of the thrilling exploits of the St Helier Extraordinary Group, also known to those with the appropriate clearance as S.H.E.G. - Jersey's Secret Service.

OPERATION CORBIERE: DONKEYS ARE FOREVER

October, 1962; the world tiptoes on the brink of nuclear armageddon during the Cuban Missile Crisis. Outside the glare of the international media, S.H.E.G. agents respond to their own island crisis when a diplomatic standoff erupts over lucrative lobster fishing rights between Jersey and its ideological enemies in the so-called 'Northern Bloc' of Guernsey, Alderney and Sark. Concerned that simmering tensions over access to the British holiday market will explode into open conflict over who invented the fisherman's sweater, Jersey's top brass deploy S.H.E.G. on a dangerous mission deep undercover in enemy territory.

Agents are tasked with paralysing the Guernsey politburo long enough for Alderney's political support to be weakened by bribery: a suitcase full of rude playing cards bought from St Malo and the promise of VIP tickets to an Englebert Humperdinck concert. Whilst one strike team works on the gullible Alderney-dwellers, squad Humphrey swings into action and incapacitates its Sarnian targets by means of an LSD-soaked cabbage loaf. The mission is a success, as the Guernsey public sees nothing remarkable in the spectacle of their politicians stripped naked, communicating in grunts and jumping about St Peter Port on all fours.

OPERATION PUDIM: FROM FUNCHAL WITH LOVE

June 1971; acting on a diplomatic tipoff, S.H.E.G. agents enter Madeiran waters in a radar-proof submersible disguised as a giant sardine. Their mission: to rescue dissident chef Marco Gouveia De Costa De Santos Rodrigues, who is believed to be in possession of secret espetada technology that could grant Jersey a crucial advantage in the culinary arms race against Eastbourne and Skegness. Having slipped into town dressed as a group of landscape gardeners, a distraction is created by means of exploding bottles of Superbock, and the team slip away with their target intact.

OPERATION MAUFANT: THE MAN WITH THE GOLDEN BIKE

December 1990; alone since the fall of the Berlin Wall, the totalitarian statelet of Sark is soon judged to be the most dangerous 'rogue Parish' by the newly-incorporated Channel Islands Security Council. Unlike the pagan cannibal cults dominating Herm and Jethou, Sark's isolated leadership is feared to be devoting its entire resources (approximately £96,000 a year) to acquiring dangerous high-technology: a Sky subscription, Black & Decker Workmate and a Nintendo Entertainment System with Duck Hunt.

Realising that the Sark regime cannot be permitted to come into possession of power beyond its control or understanding, the other Islands immediately launch crippling air strikes against Sark's infrastructure, destroying its telephone box and both street lamps. Economic sanctions are brought into force, and S.H.E.G. operatives begin a covert destabilisation programme designed with the help of CIA, which aims to depose Sark's feudal leadership and install the handsome and popular Barclay Brothers as its puppet rulers.

OPERATION MORVE: LICENCE TO RUN A CROWN & ANCHOR STALL

September 1996: whilst S.H.E.G. primary operatives are either engaged in 'black butter ops' in the rapidly-destabilising Balkan region or attempting to sabotage the Isle of Man, remaining members left on-

Island are assigned work as stewards in the car park for Gorey Fete. Tragically, a mis-translation in the team's Jerriais codebook results in an order for Jersey wonders being decoded as "neutralise all insurgents with extreme prejudice". By the time the smoke clears, a parish choir is dead, three souvenir stores have burned to the ground and Gorey harbour resembles the Gaza strip. Authorities cover up the incident by blaming it on drunken teenagers, and as a precaution licences for high-powered sniper rifles are transferred to the safe hands of Grouville's honorary police.

OPERATION TEATOWEL: FOR PARISH EYES ONLY

May 2003: as the world still reels from the attacks of September 11, S.H.E.G. special forces prepare for a clandestine mission drop deep into the Tora Bora cave complex in Afghanistan. Their target: Al Qaida leader Osama Bin Laden, as international intelligence suggests that militants plan to duplicate strikes on the Pentagon and World Trade Centre with a devastating attack on the steam clock. The plot is part-funded by Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein, who is rumoured to nurse vengeance against the Island after an unsatisfactory B&B stay in 1987.

Unfortunately, underground training in the bunkers at Grosnez so disorients the team that they fail to notice when a radar malfunction causes them to be accidentally deployed in the gay party resort of Mykonos in Greece. It is several days before the commandoes realise that the popularity of bushy moustaches and relative absence of women has nothing to do with religious fundamentalism. To this day, two sleeper agents remain deep undercover as co-managers of a dog grooming parlour in Brighton.

THE SECRET LIVES OF JERSEY PEOPLE

WORDS GRANT RUNYON
 ILLUSTRATIONS BEN ROBERTSON

THE CONSPIRACY THEORIST

OUTWARD APPEARANCE:
 Slightly crumpled, balding, fidgety. The type of nondescript man you expect to stand two spaces away from at a pub urinal. You think you might know him from work, but you wouldn't say hello because he never makes eye contact. He avoids branded clothing, chain restaurants and airports. Obviously somebody who drinks strong coffee after midnight.

AWAY FROM PRYING EYES:
 In reality, he lacks the time for personal grooming because life is a race against time to uncover a conspiracy that goes right the way to the top. He'll expose the truth, or die trying, and his numerous (yet mysterious) enemies know this. That explains numerous parish hall enquiries, a lack of success with women and a strange obsession with whether or not Prince Philip lays eggs. He's seen The Matrix 50 times and thinks it's a documentary. Somehow the international conspiracy that controls the media doesn't prevent him from updating his blog twice daily.

THE SUBMISSIVE MANAGER

OUTWARD APPEARANCE:
 Power suit, coloured braces, a cloud of cologne that cost more than your weekly shop. Air of public-school entitlement. This man is used to hiring, firing and harassing his underlings in order to get exactly what he wants: money and power. Most people assume the occasional bruises are from squash or rugby.

DRESS-DOWN DAY:
 When he finally gets off work, the alpha-male man's man spends his downtime leathered-up, chained down and receiving copious spankings from an expensive dominatrix operating out of St John's village. If this naughty slave doesn't do exactly what mistress says he'll be punished, and there's no opportunity to call HR when the boss has a six inch stiletto heel hovering over the two most valuable investments in your stock portfolio.

THE MIGHTY WIZARD

OUTWARD APPEARANCE:
 Meek, bespectacled IT specialist. Pen in shirt pocket and belt-mounted mobile phone holster. Pale-skinned and lactose intolerant. Bullied at school for being unable to explain calculus to fellow ten-year olds. Terrible posture.

HIS TRUE FORM:
 Grufar the Dragon Mage is Supreme Paladin of the Guild of Enchanters, the most feared lawful faction in the online fantasy realm of Ultimoth. Through possession of the Shield of Scrofulax, he commands respect from over 7 million gamers worldwide. Knows that non-virtual people think this is extremely sad - doesn't care because his side business of selling magical artefacts on eBay brings in about £400 a week, all of which he has been investing in high-performing stocks since 1996. He's cyber-dating two Japanese bikini models.

PEOPLE USED TO LIVING IN CITIES OFTEN SAY THAT THERE IS SOMETHING VERY EERIE ABOUT THE PARTICULAR CLOSENESS OF ISLAND LIFE. SURROUNDED ON ALL SIDES BY THE OCEAN; FRIENDS, NEIGHBOURS AND ENEMIES ARE NEVER FAR AWAY.

Islanders are curious, nosy even, so secrets spread fast in a place where gossip is a valuable currency. In plain English, this means that if you like to spend your off-time dressed up as a cowboy with no pants, sooner or later your boss will know about it and your neighbours will be coming over to borrow your lasso.

Perhaps your secret isn't even that shocking - maybe you just don't like co-workers knowing you speak fluent Klingon. In cities, you have enough space for everybody to do their thing - if you live in an area where your people tut at your interests you can just move a mile across town to an area where anything goes, Commander Worf.

Here in Jersey, privacy must be maintained by a convincing outward layer of bland normality, to ensure that relatives and coworkers don't ask questions about all those parcels and can never, ever guess why you buy so many cucumbers.

THE SWINGERS

OUTWARD APPEARANCE:

Polite middle-aged couple dressed in Marks & Sparks smart-casual. Probably teachers. No children, but at least three small dogs. They go caravanning on the mainland every three months. Once went to the Algarve but found the food too spicy. Always give the impression that they're checking you out.

LET IT ALL OUT AT THE WEEKEND:

Never happier than when the caravan hits the A354, Phil Collins on the stereo, a suitcase full of PVC knickers, Polaroid film and assorted role-play uniforms. They're en-route to visit Marjorie and Kenneth in Bolton, who've got a lovely dungeon in the spare room of their semi. Of course, there's time to visit some famous dogging spots on the way - darling, what was the name of that charming footballer we met last year?

THE CULT MEMBER

OUTWARD APPEARANCE:

Unremarkable apart from the wide, starey eyes and an expression of inner joy. Maybe he does a lot of yoga? Very calm - clearly knows something you don't. Always smiling at a phone timer that is set to go off in exactly 8 months, 3 days and 22 hours. Possibly wearing sandals.

LOOK PAST THE MATERIAL PLANE:

When not spreading The Word, he is clad in robes of shining purple, which the Universal Leader L Bob Cupboard has decreed as the resonant colour of the higher universe. Perhaps you would be interested in learning more about the psychic emanations that sing to us from the divine layer? There is room for many more in our starship, although the Leader instructs that we will commence our final journey very soon. Caution: there is no turning back, for the life of this world is short indeed. Give L Bob your heart, and also your PIN code.

THE SUPERFAN

OUTWARD APPEARANCE:

Middle-aged lady, bingo wings. Owl glasses, sensible perm. Knitted cardigan with a picture of an Alsatian on it. Bulging shopping bags full of - what exactly? Probably volunteers at a charity shop. Always buying pop magazines aimed at teenage girls - perhaps they're for her nieces.

BIRTHDAY SUIT:

It puts the lotion on the skin, or else it gets the hose again. Most people assume that Jedward vanished from the public eye due to waning public interest. Well, one person will NEVER forget beautiful, talented Jedward, because she's got them imprisoned in a well in her basement. From the first moment she set eyes on these angelic twins, she KNEW that Jedward deserved to live forever. Well, not 'live forever' in the literal sense, as she plans to starve them, skin them and wear them both like a cute little man suit. Shh, don't tell anybody! Bieber is next.

PROFILE: NIEVE JENNINGS

WORDS TAMARIN WILKINSON

NIEVE JENNINGS IS A HEADSTRONG, BUBBLY INDIVIDUAL

AND ONE THAT YOU MAY ALREADY BE FAMILIAR WITH - SHE HAS AFTER ALL SPENT THE SUMMER MONTHS TOURING THE ISLAND IN A VIVID RED AC ACE ROADSTER.

If the car alone wasn't enough to grab your attention, then maybe her 50's style wardrobe did the trick - delivered to her personally when she became the face of 'Westmount'. 'It was like Christmas' explains Nieve. 'The vintage clothes, the car, everything about this summer has been a magical experience'.

Nieve, originally from Glasgow, first shot to fame when she became Miss Scotland in 2007. 'Two weeks before I graduated my mum entered me into the competition. After taking the crown, I represented my country as an ambassador to Scotland in Sanya, China and the Hainan Province'. Nieve describes the illustrious Miss World pageant as a life changing experience.

And modelling isn't all this vision of 50's glamour has to offer. Musical theatre has always been a big part of Nieve's life, and from the age of six she was enrolled in the Glasgow Academy of Musical Theatre Arts. These events were the stepping-stones to the rest of her career, and one of the reasons she's been granted permission to perform in some of the country's most exquisite venues. Finding her voice and feet through theatre has allowed her to become the talented individual she is today.

When I ask Nieve what it was that brought her to the island, she responds 'I met a lovely Jersey boy, I fell in love with him and the island at the same time'. So when Dandara asked Nieve to be the face of their new campaign, she jumped at the chance.

Westmount, the new apartment project, takes inspiration from the beginning of apartment living - American retro influences, a 1950's style and an element of contemporary glamour. They therefore needed someone to emanate this exact style and Nieve fitted the bill perfectly.

With a wardrobe to rival most (sourced from some of the best retro boutiques in London) and a personality to match the vibrancy of these clothes, I can see why Nieve was selected to head the campaign.

Taking vision from New York's famous Meat Market, the Westmount brand campaign promotes stylish apartment living at its best. When I ask Nieve what she thinks of the new contemporary living spaces, she answers 'from the room shape to the décor, the finish is beautiful - it makes me want to get one!'

When I ask Nieve what she thinks of the new contemporary living spaces, she answers 'from the room shape to the décor, the finish is beautiful - it makes me want to get one!'

Even the Westmount Sales Suite radiates a certain sense of New York style - a little like that of the famous Central Perk Coffee Shop that features on the iconic TV show Friends. It is situated off the Chart Room at Castle Quay if you are yet to see it.

So what's next for Nieve Jennings? 'I definitely want to be in Jersey and I'd love to continue my involvement with stylish property. I'm also intent on staying true to my theatrical side.' Nieve often sets to the stage come Christmas time, taking part in a variety of pantos. Her latest venture - the leading lady Maid Marion starring alongside Jim Davidson.

Westmount is a collection of one, two and three bedroom apartments, all of which feature contemporary living spaces complete with balconies or terraces, parking and an on site gym. Situated just a short walk from the town centre and adjacent to the People's Park St Helier.

GUIDE TO GUERNSEY

WORDS RON McCOY

HISTORY

In 1940, King George presented the Channel Islands as a gift to Hitler. Although grateful for this offering, the leader of Nazi Germany had exhausted most of its natural resources and by 1945, had thoroughly embarrassed the Island's Development Committee by erecting large, concrete summer homes along the entire Guernsey coastline, largely without permission. The Island was then gifted to the Barclay brothers, who in 1993 built their own fortified summer home on the neighbouring island of Brecqhou.

From their spectacular vantage point, the banking brothers became Guernsey's newest overseers.

Guernsey's beloved flag, the Iron Cross of St. George, can be seen adorning postcards, rooftops and flagpoles across the Island.

THE ISLAND

Guernsey was divided into Northern and Southern territories around 12BC. Warring tribal leaders divided the land with hedgerows and granite walls, believing pestilence and ill fortune would strike if natives to each territory dared cross their makeshift boundaries.

A large portion of 'The North' is deemed a no mans land. Le Petit Bouet was, for some time classed by UN security sanction as a Dead Mans Zone. The great 'battle of reclamation' of Le Petit Bouet in 2005 marked a new era in security and settlement for the Island.

An example of a post-2005 police vehicle used for routine police duties

The local Police force ordered the purchase of an armoured attack vehicle sometime later for the cool price of £183, 000. Social uproar followed but quickly subsided. Local States members supported the investment as 'tactical' and stated that the acquisition not only prevented social unrest, but also provided a necessary deterrent against the possible future threat of invading German forces.

Inhabitants of the Northern settlements, such as 'The Bridge', the 'Bouet' and 'The Vale', are commonly referred to by their Southern counterparts as "Pezzers"; A term referring to their practical demeanor, disheveled appearance, typically simple attire and the inclusion of "ey", the old Norse word for 'island', at the end of every sentence.

Southern land dwellers, referred to by many in the North as "herders" or "siblings"; due to their distinctive scent, prominent teeth and aesthetic similarity to one another, tend not to venture further than their local market, farmhouse or fishing spot. Most believe that in doing so, crops are destined to yield poorly and livestock expected to wither and perish.

LEISURE ACTIVITIES - ISLAND SPORT

Some sport is attempted on the Island. Football was first established there in 1302, when Norse Warlords visited the Island and began kicking the severed head of a local peasant ("Pez" for short) amongst themselves.

A modern, local match still shares many of its violent ancestral similarities, but general skill and comprehension of the game is thwarted by geographical issues (there are no flat fields in Guernsey) and the low literacy/numeracy levels of players cause immeasurable confusion. Local matches are usually thrown into disrepute as both sides frequently generate scores spontaneously and subsequently, all players are reluctant to follow the general rules of play. UK Football league standards do not apply on Guernsey. Instead, an alternative mandate implemented by the Guernsey Football Association, incorporates the use of crab pots instead of regulation footballs and defenders are equipped with fishing rods. The inclusion of farm animals, on both teams, is also standard.

CULTURE

Scratch the surface of the serene Guernsey setting and discover the murky underworld of black market trading and the sickening bloodsport of Limpet fighting. Limpet baiting sessions can last up to seven hours and are not for the faint hearted.

Guernsey's most famous musical export are undoubtedly, pop duo 'Dude Krunch'. Launched in 2009 under the watchful eye of music mogul Pete Waterman, 'Dude Krunch' achieved international success with multiple top 40 singles in the UK charts and a string of number 1 singles in Germany. Hits such as "Give me back my baby", "Apple dance" and "No giggidy" have received critical acclaim and established the boy band as platinum selling artists.

Guernsey's infamous 'Rambo' cop car defuses scenes of tension between the North & South just moments after it rolled off the Condor Rapide.

BUSINESS

Up until the mid 20th century, Guernsey's primary export was small exotic fruits locally referred to as "toms". These small, fleshy orbs grew in abundance across the Island until the Northern parishes embargoed trade with the mainland, resulting in widespread famine across the Southern territory.

At the beginning of the 21st century, Guernsey became the 'legal-high' capital of the world, establishing successful trade links with independent entrepreneurs in Slough, Southampton, Brighton and Manchester. Importing vast quantities of chemicals for recreational consumption ceased in 2009 when local leaders outlawed the compounds. Subsequently, thoroughbred donkey breeding and the export of livestock ground to a halt - Guernsey now relies heavily on a cheap labour force from the EU and financial support from its sister isle, Jersey.

TOURISM & TRAVEL

Guernsey's tourism is largely supported by the legions of German tourists who flock to the Island each year. Particularly in the warm summer months, eager visitors can be seen marching the coastal paths and photo-documenting their architectural legacies with silent admiration.

It was recently discovered that Tourism officials had fabricated statistics relating to visitor numbers to and from the Island. They were found guilty of incorporating students returning from study in the UK and contractors working on the Island, as visiting tourists.

Special buses commissioned for Guernsey still feature full sized wheels to minimise passenger discomfort when mounting pavements

COMMUTING

Buses were introduced to the Island in the 1950's and are perceived as the epitome of class - the essential mode of transportation.

In order to capitalize on Guernsey's stringent travel laws, try wearing a Guernsey Football Club shirt. This simple addition to your travel wardrobe will save you pounds and a great deal of embarrassment. Make every effort to look local and to blend in. Try not to act overly foreign as you may get asked to justify your business on the Island or worse, attacked. Respond calmly, in a sluggish tone with "bloney 'ell mon viaer ey?" for guaranteed safe passage to your destination.

Although road maintenance and closures are the plight of many modern travellers, Guernsey leaders utilize it as a display of power. Heavier road maintenance is usually the sign of a stronger territory. In recent times, local militia groups have been known to fabricate closure signs in order to divert freight traffic and execute violent ambushes.

A la perchoine,

Ron McCoy

DID YOU KNOW?

Famous televisual show "This is Jinsy" was in fact an archive BBC documentary chronicling the lives of native Guernsey folk.

Marketing Executives at Sky Atlantic were forced to spin the synoptic coverage after north/south tribal leaders threatened to overthrow the local government for fear that their secretive traditions would be exposed to mainland Britain.

CAMERON MCPHAIL
'MAGPIES AND MISCHIEF'

WORDS SARAH CILLIERS

'EVERYONE'S GOT A BOOK IN THEM', GOES THE SAYING. BUT WHAT ABOUT THE FIRST OF A CHILDREN'S BOOK SERIES, ALONG WITH A WRY AND WITTY PAPERBACK ON BEING SCOTTISH AS WELL AS A WHOLE GALLERY OF SATIRICAL CARTOONS? WELCOME TO THE WORLD OF DR CAMERON MCPHAIL, TOP BANKER TURNED WRITER AND CARTOON COLLABORATOR.

The ex-Chief Executive of The Royal Bank of Scotland's Wealth Management division has just brought out the first of a brand-new children's series, Magpies and Mischief, published in August. And even if you're not his current target readership (6-9 year-olds), you may be familiar with Cameron McPhail's gently satirical take on island life through the cartoons he creates with Kartoony Faktory co-conspirators Oli Nightingale and Ben Robertson. We featured their 'Jersey: A Beginner's Guide' map in Gallery back in 2011, and you can even buy it on teatowels... 'It sells by the thousands and we have difficulty keeping up with the numbers' says Cameron, completely deadpan. I'm sure he's being serious. Well, almost sure. With Glaswegian satirists you never can tell.

But we're not here to talk about satire. This is about his new children's book set in Jersey, which began long before the cartoons, back when his finance role brought him with his family to the island. 'It all started as bedtime stories for my two children. We'd just moved to Jersey and for small kids, it was a magical island with its castles and country lanes. I created an imaginary world at the end of our garden, and filled it with characters from their daily life and Seamus, the leprechaun wild animal vet who could fix anything with his potions of magic dust. As a parent, it kept you absolutely engaged. You could always find some sort of story, because you'd pick up on what you'd heard them talking about, and weave it in.'

Now in their twenties, Cameron's son and daughter persuaded him to get his stories printed. 'They said you've got to publish this. So I wrote a strategy, came up with new characters and created a whole self-contained world. Jersey's an ideal setting for that - it's a walled garden surrounded by surf, and you can just make it up.'

How did he update it for a new audience? 'At the start when I first told the stories to my kids, there were no bad guys. So I had to introduce a few antagonists, and I thought, how about some magpies, and an army of rats, and we need a security force - well it has to be the hedgehogs and of course they're not really up to the job...' Do I sense a smidge of satire there? 'It's just fun' says

Cameron, deadpan again. 'The bad guys aren't really bad guys, they just weren't very well brought up. Think of them as misguided rather than bad. I'll tell you who really are bad. Daleks.'

Bringing the book's characters and setting to life was the job of local illustrator and Kartoony Faktory co-collaborator Oli Nightingale. 'Oli has a sense of mischief which means he can take my ideas and evolve them into these engaging visual characters. So the owl that mixes Seamus' magic dust uses a pepperpot, there are moles wearing pink Marigolds and the book is full of Jersey locations and landmarks. That's tough in itself because you have to get everything right. The green lane can't just be any old lane, it has to be facing the right way geographically because it's Jersey, people will know!'

I ask Cameron where he finds his inspiration. 'Anywhere. I was being given a tour of Glasgow University and the guide's name was Mungo. All that was going through my mind was: you have no idea I'm going to use your name for a new character in my book. Sometimes you think, what have I missed today? How close was I to having a really good idea, that chance meeting that slips past you because you walk the other way down King Street? And of course you never know.'

Was it fun to write? 'Absolutely fun from beginning to end. Once you start writing, you just go into kids mode. It's quite an unusual exercise, and almost therapeutic. I'd recommend it.'

What advice would he give to other would-be writers? 'People know me as having been a serious banker and a chief executive in a bank, where my world was plans and numbers etc, not writing books. But really, how many times do we underestimate or judge people? If I can do it, most people can.'

'Magpies and Mischief' by Cameron McPhail is the first in the Seamus series of books for 6-9 year-olds and is available at Amazon and locally at Waterstones (Black & White Publishing, £9.99). Dr McPhail is also the author of 'The Scottish Nationality Test: How Scottish Are You'.

WORDS TAMARIN WILKINSON

The Channel Islands intertwines Gallic artistry and cuisine with Anglo-Saxon customs and culture against a wild natural milieu. Extensive sandy bays sprinkled with curious shells, unusual wildlife and birds, blustery cliff tops and secret coves are just some of the archipelago's unspoilt delights.

As I prepare to embark on a mission to discover the islands clandestine inlets and hidden territory, I quickly come to the conclusion that getting lost is par for the course.

Several sore attempts spent putting postcodes, road names and landmarks into Google maps, and I almost give up. Stumbling upon the picturesque coves I was hoping to is much harder than first anticipated - they really are hidden! The icing on the cake - a closed road with no suggestion of an alternative route!

Despite these initial hurdles, I persevere. Thankfully so - I now know why this island (regardless of its tiny 45 square miles) is such a popular tourist haunt. There are an abundance of gorgeous beaches to explore, and if you're an original Jersey bean - or have lived here long enough to grant yourself this title - I'm sure you'll have your own personal favourites.

PLEMONT

Described as the jewel of the North Coast, on a clear day (which I was lucky enough to have) you can spot Guernsey, Sark and Herm from the dramatic and secluded bay. Accessed by a winding cliff path (one part of which offers a sneak peak to the astounding drop below) lies a picturesque beach with panoramic views. Despite the wonderful weather, I was the only one denting the flawless white sands - the hike back to the top is not for the faint hearted! However, when you do, the hot chocolate and pecan pie served at the Plemont beach café is to die for.

PORTELET BAY

For those looking for a slice of Jersey paradise - you've found it! With the acclaimed title of one of the top beaches in the world, it's easy to see why this picturesque bay has won awards. Aside from its aesthetical appeal, Portelet boasts a number of hidden gems; at low tide you can walk all the way to le au Guerdain, and the location of Janvrin's tomb.

ST OUEN'S

Not the biggest secret on the island, yet with five miles to explore, it's easy to find a secluded corner on St Ouen's bay. This stunning crescent of unspoilt sand stretches the entire length of the west coast. Said to be one of the island's best driving experiences, the Five Mile road will take you all the way to Corbiere Lighthouse.

BOULEY BAY

Parking may be a challenge, getting here is an even bigger challenge! Yet once you've battled your way down the steep, winding cliff-style path, you'll discover the perfect Jersey escape - picturesque, remote, dramatic and unspoilt.

BEAUPORT BAY

Only accessible by foot, yet well worth the tiresome trek down the cliff path, and possibly one of the reasons it's often deserted. All but one side of the bay's edge is encased by the towering pink granite cliffs and colossal rock pinnacles, many of which have been sculpted into an array of magnificent shapes.

LITTLE GREVE

For those that wish to avoid the crowds of Greve de Lecq and visit a hidden cove unmarked on any map or chart, Little Greve boasts a definite fairytale ambience. The only way to get to the untouched sands is to swim. Surrounded by jump-perfect rocks, an underwater tunnel and jewel-like blue water - this narrow finger of land pokes into the North Sea, boasting a tranquil secluded bay with its very own private beach.

LA ROCQUE

At rising mid-tide, the sea begins to ensconce the harbour, creating a separation of the pier from the land. However, the best time to visit this bay is at low tide. The landscape appears almost lunar, whilst the seabed begins to expose itself. Scattered with inter-tidal rock pools and minute channels - sand bars, tidal flats and reefs begin to show, revealing an insight to Jersey's remarkable ecosystem.

Steering clear from the summer tourist trail is sometimes the best way to sightsee, and discovering areas off the beaten track is when the natural beauty of the isles really comes to life, a mismatch of turquoise shores, hiking trails and sun-kissed sands.

ANIMAL FARM
words | Dierdre Shirreffs

Slow Worms

If you have been walking around the countryside this summer you may have spotted boards laid down on the ground apparently at random.

These have actually been placed to attract slow worms, which like to rest under them during the day. The slow worm is neither slow nor a worm – it is actually a legless lizard. The name may come from the word 'slay' referring to it killing worms. An alternative name of blind worm is also misleading – the slow worm can see perfectly well. Its eyes are lidless and can close – features which separate lizards from snakes. Its scales are so small and smooth that they are hardly visible and the animal looks like a shiny brown tube about 45 cm long. Females sometimes have a dark stripe down their back.

Like all lizards it will shed its tail if caught by a predator. The wriggling tail will distract the predator while the slow worm escapes to safety. A new tail will grow to replace the lost one but it is never as long as the original. Slow worms are the gardener's friend as their main food is slugs which they eat whole. As slugs emerge at night slow worms are also active then.

They hibernate in winter, emerging in March to bask in the spring sunshine. Mating takes place in April and May, the males often fighting to get a female. Between 6 and 12 young are born in August or September. They are each born in a thin membranous egg which they immediately break open. They are about 7 centimetres long and very striking, golden with a dark stripe down their backs and dark bellies. They have many predators, including toads and take three years to mature. They are very long lived lizards and one in captivity lived 54 years but in the wild 30 years is the maximum. The adults are often killed by cats and garden strimmers are also dangerous.

A housing development in St Brelade was halted over the summer to allow the slow worms living there to breed successfully.

HEART OF A LION

A motorist has been hailed a hero after luring an escaped lion into the back of his car in Kuwait after spotting it prowling the streets. Slamming the door after the lion, the fearless hero clambered inside too, then phoned the police. However, the lion soon became angry and started to rip up the interior. Thankfully officers managed to somehow transfer the beast into a police car and delivered it to Kuwait's Authority for Agricultural Affairs and Fish Resources. A police source said: "The passer-by sat inside the car with it but then the situation became dangerous." The cub is said to have escaped from the home of a rich owner in the Gulf state, where exotic pets are considered status symbols. A police spokesman said: "People must be very cautious when they select the animals they want to keep as pets in their homes."

CATNAPPED

After a night out, a Californian man accidentally stole a cat while drunk. Posting an ad on Craigslist, he hoped to find its owners after realising it wasn't a stray. The ad said: "If anyone is missing a cat name Django (pronounced Jango the D is silent) I stole him last night. "Not on purpose, I was extremely intoxicated and thought he was just some random stray I was rescuing. "It was not until this morning when I was haphazardly going for a glass of water that I remembered I took the cat and noticed that he (had) a collar. "Django is a very frisky black cat, he also has very sleepy eyes and appears to be stoned although I don't think he is." The man apologised for stealing the cat and added that he had been feeding him cheese.

RIP REGGIE

Prison officials have been slammed for sending a sick guinea pig called Reggie Kray to a vet in a prisoner escort vehicle. The poor guinea pig had an ear infection and was whisked to the vets and after being treated and was thankfully reunited with his brother Ronnie, back at HMP Eastwood Park, at Wotton-under-Edge. Unfortunately there was to be no happy ending, with Reggie sadly dying 2 hours later. Two vets were later called to prison to certify Reggie's death, which was later logged on the prison computer as a death in custody (#RIPReggie). After uproar that this was apparently a 'waste of funds', the Ministry of Justice confirmed that Reggie the guinea pig was taken to see a vet in a prison vehicle, although he was otherwise unaccompanied, with a later statement from the MoJ telling of the animals' value to the inmates: "A small number of donated animals are kept at HMP Eastwood Park to help with the rehabilitation of prisoners."

HEY HEY HEY IT'S MAGIC

A US photographer's video of his beard apparently performing amazing tricks is proving a smash hit online. More than 700,000 people have watched the clip posted by Ben Garvin, from Minneapolis, on YouTube. His talented beard is apparently moving to his command, juggling combs and even hiding crayons, carrots and cucumbers. Mr Garvin says he shot the entire video on an iPhone and used an app called Stop Motion Studio to stitch it all together. "I knew this video was a hit when I showed it to my seven-year-old son for the first time," he said. "He laughed so hard a small puddle appeared at his feet afterwards - a high bar!"

TOUJOURS TINGO

Love nowadays is just so complicated, but luckily for us the Germans have a few phrases to make it just that bit easier...

Lukenfuller - the person one dates between two relationships (literally hole-filler)

Backfischschwärmerei - the crush young teenage girls get for older men (literally fish-fried enthusiasm)

Die Bettgeschichte - a one night stand (literally bedtime story)

GIVE COMMUNITY AND SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY IN JERSEY

GOOD WERK.

Deutsche Bank's team of summer interns organised a sponsored 'Bikeathon' on 9th August, in aid of the Jersey Cheshire Home, which is currently celebrating its 30th anniversary and is the Bank's nominated charity this year. The Bikeathon involved 20 cyclists, including bank staff and the team of interns, and took place in Don Street in St Helier, raising a total of £1,653.37, including public donations and cyclists' sponsorship, which was matched by Deutsche Bank under its Matched Giving Scheme. The interns were delighted with the total figure raised and are all excited to see the positive impact the money will have on the lives of the residents at the Jersey Cheshire Home. In the photo l-r are the DB interns: Jenny Jones, Katherine Wakeham, Emma Williams, Pamela Dickson, Johnny Hickling, Adam Spring, James Hudson and Victoria Rees.

ALL FORE A GOOD CAUSE.

The fifth annual Family Nursing & Home Care Golf Day at La Moye Golf Club raised in excess of £10,500 for the charity. The event was won by a team from Quilter, whose four golfers each won a night at Longueville Manor. The team - Chris Scott, Damien Maltwood, Iain Moodie and Phil Evans beat 22 other teams. Second place went to Formby Hall, Liverpool Boys led by Mick Hanlon and third place went to Kleinwort Benson led by Thomas Cummins. Family Nursing & Home Care was very honoured that the Lieutenant Governor played as part of the Family Nursing & Home Care Team. Each team paid £500 to enter the competition. As well as 18 holes of golf, competitors enjoyed refreshments throughout the day, a four course lunch in the clubhouse, with prize giving, raffle and auction. The event ended in good spirits with prizes and trophies being presented by Lady Gene McColl - Patron FNHC for Winning Teams, Longest Drive and Nearest the Pin.

BACKCARE AWARENESS WEEK 'CARING FOR CARERS'

Monday 7th - Friday 11th October 2013

Carers provide invaluable help and assistance to their children, friends, relatives, and partners, but what happens when their work leads to back pain, compromising their ability to care? Back pain is endemic among carers: a 2011 survey found that 70% of carers experienced back and shoulder pain. This issue seriously affects the quality of life of those who should be most valued in our society, as well as impacting on their caregiving work. Back to Balance at the Lido Wellness Centre fully supports BackCare Awareness Week 'Caring for Carers'.

When someone takes care of a dependent relative or individual in their day to day job, it can be all too easy for their own health and well-being to be overlooked. They may often have to lift and manoeuvre a less able person which may lead to back pain. Back to Balance are offering a 15% discount for new and existing patients who work in the care industry (whether it be at home, hospital, care home, paramedic or other). This offer will run for the month of October and 15% discount will be applied to all Chiropractic and Osteopathy treatments during this time for carers. If you would like to book an appointment, please contact them 789367.

The organisers would like to thank Premier Contractors and Richard Brocken for sponsoring the event, La Moye Golf Club for the use of the course, Longueville Manor Hotel for supplying the main prize, Waitrose for goody bags and all those who very generously gave raffle/auction and donations for the event. Guests were given an overview of FN&HC's involvement in the new children's centre at St Clements and how the money raised on the day will be used from Michelle Cumming Operational Lead for Child and Family Services.

GIVEING BACK

We sometimes wish we could have more pages to dedicate to the work that companies and individuals do to help Jersey charitable causes. We've therefore been working on a new publication, a high quality coffee table annual of the CSR (Corporate and Social Responsibility) activities undertaken in Jersey and beyond. The motivation was twofold, to showcase current initiatives and also present the worthy charitable causes that exist to a wide audience, to show how you can help, either as your company or as an individual as a fundraiser or volunteer. The first edition was published last month and will be distributed to all Jersey businesses.

Call 811100 to learn more and see how you can be included in the next edition.

LLOYDS TSB BRANCH REFURBISHMENT FOCUSES ON LOCAL COMMUNITY

Local charities and members of the community have benefitted from a fundraising effort to mark the refurbishment of Lloyds TSB's landmark premises on Broad Street. The refurbishment was unveiled on 15 August 2013 and, as part of the celebrations to mark 133 years of the Bank's continued presence in the listed building, a Victorian themed event and a number of charitable initiatives were held. The winner of the competition offering the chance to win a two-night stay at Jersey Heritage's new holiday let at Hamptonne was announced, and nine runners up received a bottle of commemorative champagne and £133 to donate to a charity of their choice.

Michael Chaytor, Head of Islands Retail Banking at Lloyds TSB said: 'Lloyds TSB is very much a part of the local community and we wanted islanders to be actively involved in marking the refurbishment at Broad Street and the Bank's longstanding commitment to the island. Many islanders joined our Victorian themed celebration and helped us to raise money for the Jersey Alzheimer's Association, Brighter Futures, Teenage Cancer Trust and Jersey Hospice.' Tim Cooke, Lloyds TSB Islands Director, added: 'Lloyds TSB has a significant on-going community programme. The Lloyds TSB foundation for the Channel Islands has again this year provided a grant programme to charities throughout the Channel Islands which year to date is in excess of £400,000. Lloyds TSB employees have raised a further £13,000 through their own charity initiatives. This sum was also matched by a further £13,000 through the Staff Matched Giving Scheme run by the Foundation.'

As part of the refurbishment, a regularly updated community board marking the fundraising and charitable work of employees and the Lloyds TSB Foundation, has been installed in the Banking Hall to serve as a visual reminder of on-going charity work.

NATIONAL DYSLEXIA WEEK 14-20TH OCTOBER

What does it mean to you?

Think dyslexia doesn't affect you? Think again, 10% of the British population is dyslexic, someone in your close family or your circle of friends is dyslexic.

Dyslexia is not an obvious difficulty; it is hidden. As a result, dyslexic people have to overcome numerous barriers to make a full contribution to society.

The theme for this year's Dyslexia Awareness Week is Beyond Words.

The aim of the week is to debunk the myth that dyslexia is just a difficulty with reading and spelling. Dyslexia is a phonological processing difficulty and this means that dyslexic people can have trouble with a range of things including poor short-term memory, maths difficulties or poor organisation skills.

The Jersey Dyslexia Association (JDA) campaigns for a dyslexia friendly society where barriers to dyslexic people do not exist. The JDA works to ensure that all people with dyslexia fulfill their potential. To achieve this, we need to create change, set standards and support and enable people. The JDA is the voice of dyslexic people; it listens to their views, represents their agendas and presses for long lasting sustainable change.

A GRAND HERITAGE

In the first six months of 2013, Grand Jersey and its guests have raised £3386 for Jersey Heritage through the hotel's '£1 on bills' donation scheme. The money raised to date can help support the work of Jersey Heritage in a number of areas, for example: conserve up to five 18th century items from the Jersey Heritage collection or enable Jersey Heritage to host 400 children to discover the pirates at the Maritime Museum.

The scheme, which started in 2010, gives guests staying at the five-star hotel the option of adding £1 to their final bill to be donated directly to local charities. Eamonn Elliott, general manager at Grand Jersey, said: 'Grand Jersey guests enjoy visiting the numerous attractions and historic public sites that Jersey Heritage offers, and we receive very positive feedback about the opportunity to further support the on going preservation of Jersey's rich heritage. We hope to at least double the figure raised by the end of the year.'

Jeremy Swetenham Commercial Director at Jersey Heritage, commented: 'We are absolutely delighted at the support shown by the Grand Jersey and its guests. Such an initiative demonstrates how important visitors to the island are in protecting the Island's rich history and culture. It is through local business partnerships such as these that we can, in turn, provide visitors with a unique and memorable Island experience. We would like to thank both Grand Jersey and all of those who have donated to date.'

The Grand Jersey pledge is optional and guests that chose to donate receive a voucher when they check-in entitling them to £1 off a guidebook. Since the scheme began, Grand Jersey has raised more than £12,000 for Durrell Wildlife Conservation Trust.

CARRYING OUT STANDARD MAINTENANCE

Standard Bank staff are coming to the aid of the Durrell Orangutans and will be going to new heights in an effort to refurbish their enclosure at Durrell.

Durrell approached Standard Bank with a request for help to do some maintenance on the aerial runway and play area in the Orangutan enclosure. Last year bank staff tidied up the moat and cleared overgrown vegetation. This year they will be undertaking safety training and donning harnesses to climb up and carry out maintenance work on the poles and aerial ropeways.

Claire Reid, Head of Marketing and Communications said it was a natural progression following on from their 2012 project, ‘80 staff put in 420 hours last year to clear the enclosure floor and it seemed only natural that we turn our attentions to the aerial facilities. We are also hoping to catch a close-up glimpse of the new arrival, and I think there will be lots of staff eager to view the world from the point of view of an Orangutan. Durrell is a local organisation with a world-wide focus, just as Standard Bank is. Giving some of our time to help this important charity is essential as an employer and business in the community.’

The Standard Bank staff will be undertaking the maintenance work over four days, starting tomorrow, Tuesday, September 17th.

JERSEY DYSLEXIA ASSOCIATION KIDS KAYAK & PADDLEBOARDING DAY

The JDA will be holding a kayak and stand-up paddleboarding day especially for dyslexic children on Saturday 19th October, which sounds like a good excuse to meet fellow dyslexics and make the most of our coastal environment (not to mention the sea is at its warmest level for the year, despite the slightly grey weather at times!).

If you'd like to find out more about the event please go to www.jerseydyslexia.com as the time and location of this event were still to be confirmed at the time of going to print. They're also offering half price membership throughout October so that you can not only help support and raise awareness for those with dyslexia but also get involved with future events and receive 3 copies of the magazine 'Contact' from British Dyslexia, and all for only £10!

Thankfully, this chap isn't one of the instructors...

SHOP WITH A CONSCIENCE, SHOP PINK

Every month in the UK 1,000 women die from breast cancer, so Breakthrough Breast Cancer's work has never been more important. We're leading the way in discovering new treatments, improving diagnosis and identifying ways to prevent breast cancer from developing at all.

But breast cancer is still the most commonly-diagnosed cancer in the UK, and each year 50,000 women will be diagnosed with the disease. So this Breast Cancer Awareness Month, we want to remind women that knowing their own bodies could save their lives. They just need to follow TLC: Touch, Look, Check.

Leading retailers, Avon, M&S, ghd and Laura Ashley have designed exclusive beauty, fashion and home ware products that all carry a minimum 10% donation towards Breakthrough's vital research. There are some fantastic hair and nail products, luxurious lingerie and charming interiors pieces for you to peruse - and even more fabulous items from additional retailers are yet to come!

Gallery #100 Soiree
THE MERCHANT HOUSE BRASSERIE
 FRIDAY 13TH SEPTEMBER

With 100 issues under our belt it seemed like a few drinks were in order. Whilst it was a party for all, we'd invited some great folks that have contributed to Gallery over the last 100 editions. We've spread the love and had events at a variety of venues over the years and it was great to add the Merchant House Brasserie at the Jersey Museum to that list. It was great to see faces old and new and ply them with free drinks and a fantastic selection of canapes. What started as a relaxed affair soon turned into helium consumption and twerking to the (always brilliant) sounds of Rocksteady. If you didn't make it down, fear not, we're talking about organising something else bigger and broader in the near future. We hope to see you there.

Le Gallais Victorian Art Exhibition Launch
JERSEY MUSEUM
 WEDNESDAY 11TH SEPTEMBER

F Le Gallais and Sons hosted a "private view" event as the main sponsor of the new Jersey Heritage art exhibition. Victorian All Change, explores the Island's Victorian heritage and the way in which Island life changed between 1837 - 1901 - the reign of Queen Victoria.

The era is particularly relevant to Le Gallais as the firm was founded in 1825 by the current MD's Great Great Great Grandfather, Richard Le Gallais, who was awarded the Royal Warrant by the Monarch herself in 1846 when she visited the Island.

CHANCES ARE YOU'LL KNOW A JERSEY BEAN THAT RARELY GETS TO THE LOCAL BEACH, A LONDONER WHO'S NEVER SEEN BIG BEN, AND A SPANIARD WHO'S YET TO TOUR THE CASO BATLLO.

Yet holidaying in your own backyard is a great way to puncture the banal routines of everyday life. With our wonderful coastline, idyllic countryside and vibrant culture, Jersey is often described as a European hotspot. Yet chances are, if you live here, you'll rarely have the time to experience the island's many appeals.

With so much on our doorsteps, and the 'staycation' finally finding favour, now is the time to rediscover Jersey's abundance of clandestine charms.

Whether you wish to bask in botanical greenery, embark on an adventure or lounge in luxury, Jersey has a strong case for being the prettiest of all British crown dependencies, and with hidden coves, picturesque beaches and year-round peace and quiet, why venture anywhere else?

Here's a showcase of what's on offer at some of the island's top hotels:

THE ATLANTIC ▲

Set upon a backdrop of dramatic skies and glittering coastline, The Atlantic Hotel certainly lives up to its status. Once inside the grand entrance way, and you'll be forgiven for thinking you've been whisked away to another time zone.

Although a proud Jersey establishment, this privately owned venue, posing on an idyllic corner of the island, creates the illusion of an unspoilt world - far from the hustle and bustle of St Helier.

A member of Small Luxury Hotels of The World, this cliff top venue is the perfect place in which to spend a romantic getaway, and after a three course table d'hote dinner - included in the luxury escapes overnight package - guests can drift off to the sound of the waves crashing against the rocks below.

Surrounded by heavenly headland, 3000 miles of ocean and Jersey's picturesque conservation area, Les Mielles, the pretty location of St Ouen's Bay is just one of this hotel's many assets. When booking a staycation escape, you're invited to leave your troubles behind and your keys with the concierge. Switching off from the mundane chores of everyday life is easy when ensconced in the relaxing ambiance of The Atlantic, where leisurely cycles, railway walks, golf excursions and fine dining are all the rage.

It's here that each and every element is geared towards creating a relaxing environment, the beauty of the so-called staycation; a holiday from home, yet one that allows you to skip the stresses and strains of travel.

A luxury overnight stay for two at The Atlantic Hotel starts at just £210 this winter and will entitle you to complimentary use of the Palm Club's exquisite facilities, a full English breakfast and a three-course dinner served in the Michelin-starred Ocean restaurant.

For more information or to book a staycation package at The Atlantic Hotel, please contact Hayley Brockwell on 744101 or hayley@theatlantichotel.com Visit www.theatlantichotel.com for more information.

THE SOMERVILLE ▲

Nestled on the hillside overlooking St Aubin's Harbour is the perfect location for a staycation. This four gold star JQA rated hotel is one of the finest country house style hotels on the island and is well known for its warm welcome and excellent service.

The hotel offers 59 rooms including three Superior Garden Sea View rooms with private Terraces and garden and complimentary WiFi is available throughout all the bedrooms and public areas.

The Somerville Hotel's restaurant, Tides, has recently been awarded a Gold Highly Recommended Accreditation by Quality in Tourism and offers unrivalled views of St Aubin's. You can enjoy both lunch and dinner in Tides from the extensive a la carte menu or set table d'hote menus.

You can relax and unwind at the Somerville Hotel during October and November with their fantastic Tennerfest Overnight package which includes one night accommodation in a Classic Inland room, three course dinner on their Tennerfest menu plus full English breakfast the following morning for only £62.50 per person.

With this fantastic luxury hotel here at home, is there any need to escape to any other destination?

To book this package, call The Somerville Hotel reservations team on 491900 or email somerville@dolanhotels.com. Visit www.dolanhotels.com for more information.

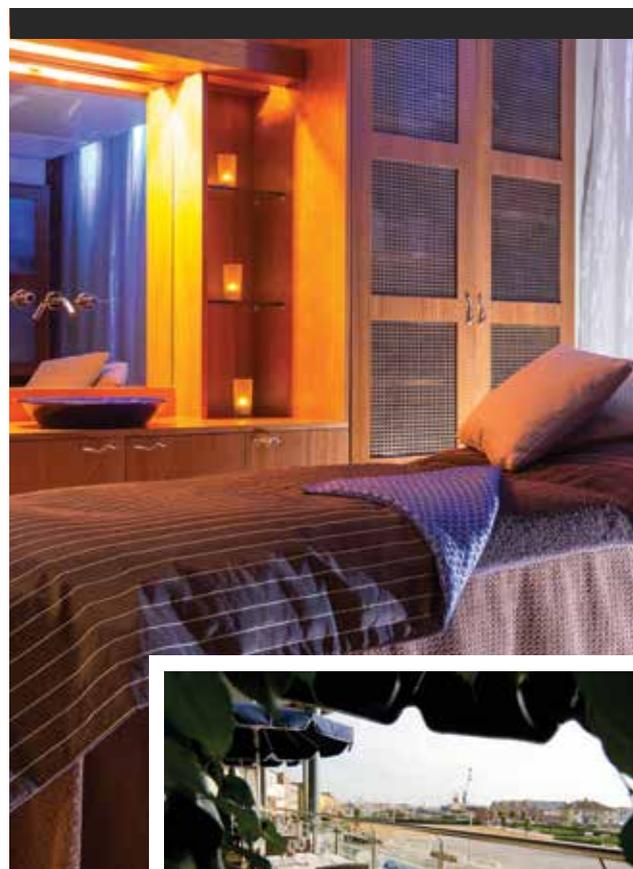

THE ROYAL YACHT HOTEL ▼

With well appointed bedrooms from standard to suites, three restaurants, four bars and a luxurious spa to wash away all of your troubles, the Royal Yacht Hotel is the perfect 'Staycation' solution. The aim here is to allow yourself to be spoiled by all that the Royal Yacht hotel has to offer. Throughout the year, offers and packages are available for locals and travellers alike.

Their Spa Package is a simple package of perfect proportion, ideal for a mini-moon, mid week recharge or romantic weekend escape. A great mix of spa, accommodation and dinner to relax, indulge and soothe you and your special someone. Enjoy an overnight stay in a Gold Double or Twin Room, perfectly balanced accommodation for two people with everything you need to make your stay special. For a special occasion, why not consider an upgrade for a small surcharge? This package includes two treatments, one for you and one for your partner or friend so you can both enjoy the benefits of Spa Sirène fully. Their therapists offer a personal touch to all treatments so there's no 'packaged' feel to the experience, it's all about you. And, if that's not enough, consider their Mud Rasul Treatment as a package add on, it's the perfect opportunity to get a bit hands on!

Once, you've de-toxed, allow them to recharge you with a delicious three course table d'hôte dinner in Restaurant Sirocco. Enjoy your dinner overlooking the glittering marina, alfresco or cocooned in the sultry Sirocco atmosphere. Please note that the Spa Package is not available during December but they can offer an alternate package during this month.

For more information on our Spa Package, call reservations on 720511 or email reception@theroyal yacht.com. Or visit www.theroyal yacht.com

THE RADISSON BLU ▲

There is a sensational offer for you this winter season at the 4* Radisson Blu Waterfront Hotel exclusive to locals... Take a breath... £79.00 room only per room per night for a standard island facing bedroom, upgrade to sea view rooms from £20, valid from 7th October to 28th February 2014 subject to availability. They're also throwing in a complimentary bottle of house wine with a dinner for two in their Waterfront Brasserie, just because they're nice like that!

Dine in their stylish Brasserie overlooking Elizabeth Marina on quality food artfully prepared by their talented Executive Chef Vincent Duffy and his team, using seasonal and local produce. Enjoy the atmosphere on Friday and Saturday nights from 5pm with live music in the Martello Bar. After hitting the bright lights of St Helier, don't splurge on a taxi fare; instead spend a luxurious night's sleep in one of their exquisite bedrooms instead.

All guests have unlimited access to their leisure facilities where you can cleanse in the steam room, indulge with a hot-stone massage in their salon and dive into the pool after a refreshing work-out in the gym. After working up an appetite, dine 2 for 1 for Sunday Lunch in the Brasserie with foot-tapping rhythms from a live band. When the day's done, savour a crisp glass of wine in the Martello Bar as you watch the sunset over the yachts in the marina. Bliss...

Holiday closer to home with premium service in stylish surroundings to leave you with a lasting smile on your face this winter. Get away from it all here in beautiful Jersey without the expensive price-tag.

So what are you waiting for? Pack your overnight bag! Just ask for the 'local's offer' when you book.

dream DESTINATION

VIV PALLOT interviewed
SANDRA JASMINs,
mobile masseuse and beauty therapist.

Sometimes we're drawn to a particular culture very different from our own. The unusual music, the exotic people, the foreign food and wine, the strange language ... they all hold a deep-rooted fascination, yet often we've no idea why.

Sandra Jasmins discovered her answer during the most unusual of circumstances ... paused at the traffic lights one rainy day in Jersey.

IF YOU COULD GO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD, WHERE WOULD IT BE?

I have this real love for belly dancing, so it would be my absolute dream to go to Turkey.

ONLY TURKEY? OR EGYPT AND MOROCCO TOO?

I prefer the belly dancing from Turkey. It's not the same as Egyptian belly dancing - they're very different. I'd really love to explore Turkey - not just Istanbul, but the whole country - getting to know the locals everywhere and learning about belly dancing along the way - dragging my husband along with me, of course!

I'M SURE HE'D ENJOY IT TOO! DO YOU DO ANY BELLY DANCING NOW?

(Laughing) Only on my own!

WHAT ABOUT CLASSES HERE IN JERSEY?

I used to go but I just don't have the time any more. It's a shame because belly dancing is so good for the body and it's really relaxing. I think it really makes you appreciate your body more when you dance ... and you can enjoy yourself at the same time!

I really love the whole culture and there's such an interesting story behind it all. Do you know that belly dancing is very, very old? Women used to dance naked in the early days - it was form of prostitution - but now it's a whole different story.

Men still watch of course, but it's become more of a "family-style" form of entertainment. Some people still think belly dancing is "loud" and sexual but it really isn't.

WHY DO YOU THINK YOU'RE SO DRAWN TO THE TURKISH MUSIC AND CULTURE?

I never knew why, but one day I was driving my car and a lady pulled up alongside me at the traffic lights and asked if I could talk. I immediately thought I'd done something wrong! But it turned out she'd seen my name (maiden name, Jasmins) on the side of my car and said she was married to someone with the same surname.

It turns out there's a Facebook page for people called Jasmins so I added myself to the list. I discovered I'm descended from a British woman who'd married an Arab and moved to Madeira -where I was born.

SO THAT MIGHT EXPLAIN IT. IF YOU WENT TO TURKEY, WOULD YOU TAKE SOME BELLY DANCING CLASSES THERE?

Oh, yes!! I'd probably join them all!

Fed up of the cold, wet weather?

JUBILEE SAILING TRUST

OCTOBER HALF TERM EXHIBITION TO RAISE AWARENESS AND FUNDS FOR THE JUBILEE SAILING TRUST
LAUNCHES 4TH NOVEMBER, 5 - 7PM (RUNS FOR TWO WEEKS)
FRAMING AND ARTS GALLERY, 61 NEW STREET

Set sail with the Jubilee Sailing Trust this month - a Jersey-based charity that owns and operates Tenacious and Lord Nelson - the only two tall ships in the world designed to support individuals of all physical abilities to sail side by side as one.

The JST are intent on encouraging islanders to become the crew, whilst offering an insight into the thrill and adventure of life at sea. Regardless of (a crew member) purchased the last painting at a recent charity auction.

Despite having Parkinson's disease, Nikki is an extremely happy, positive and creative individual and one that is intent on helping others overcome their disabilities.

'When I am painting, I feel at ease: I'm so relaxed with the canvas that everything else just melts away.'

This month, with the help of newly established artist Nikki Baudains, the Jersey branch aim to raise both money and awareness for the charity, allowing them to continue to grow.

whether you're a sailing master or a newbie to the helm, taking part in each and every activity on board is a must!

All in all, there are two fundamentals to the JST's mission: to overcome prejudices and misapprehensions about disability amongst able-bodied people, and to enable people with a disability to show others just what they are capable of.

This month, with the help of newly established artist Nikki Baudains, the Jersey branch aim to raise both money and awareness for the charity, allowing them to continue to grow. Thanks to this budding artist, the JST added another £1000 to their total, where Jono Beaty

Nikki has only recently started to paint, yet finds that she has become quite prolific in the subject matter. She uses a variety of materials to create her exceptionally moving, dramatic and atmospheric masterpieces.

Aside from being part of a great cause, one of the biggest rewards to Nikki is that people embrace her paintings.

You can spot Nikki's work at the Framing and Art Gallery between 26th October and 9th November.

UPCOMING EXHIBITION: NICOLA LUCAS

SILHOUETTE: WOOD FOR THE TREES

This exhibition has been inspired by a single etching within the Garman Ryan Collection at the New Walsall Art Gallery, entitled 'The outskirts of Rome' by French Landscape artist Jean-Baptiste Camille Corot. Nicola also admires the landscape compositions of Sir Claude Francis Barry, whose highly stylised trees were used as a frame through which to view local landmarks, particularly his later paintings of St Aubin's Fort.

NEON

I paint under the name of Neon as galleries in London like the "street artist" mystery (a bit like Pure Evil etc.). I began as a designer then switched to painting. The storybook edition was inspired by a visit to Berlin where I visited an exhibition of vinyl toys in a back street gallery. They were truly inspirational - I decided to create a storybook theme so the paintings could be viewed individually or as a story. The characters are my interpretation of the many vinyl toys that are flooding over from Japan. Several characters are repeated throughout the series of paintings so people become familiar with them and they develop a character. The Qin warriors were introduced to add an element of authority as the neon characters needed a serious side. My desire was to produce animated, vibrant and witty characters - it is a story in perpetua progress. I have also been influenced by street art - there are some talented artists painting messages on the rather bleak walls of London.

All the prints were printed in London by well established companies - they were a challenge to print because of the detail - but they did an exceptional job.

My biggest inspiration is the artist Rothko - his use of colour stunning. Also Albert Irvin another brilliant colourist. My job is art and honesty is always the best policy.

Motionhouse's work, promises to fuse passionate physicality, powerful narrative, startling imagery and emotive sound. It will appeal to anyone interested in not just contemporary dance but also multimedia, photography, art and the environment.

Once again Motionhouse is offering school workshops the day before the show and, for the first time in Jersey, the company is hosting an exclusive public workshop in the Jersey Opera House Studio when members of the public can get a lesson of Olympic proportions from the professional dancers. BROKEN

If it's not broken don't fix it - and there's certainly nothing broken about dance company Motionhouse - apart from the name of its latest touring piece which is coming to Jersey Opera House this month.

You may have seen Scattered when Motionhouse was last here in 2009; a show which explored the theme of water and has subsequently become a global hit. Now, building on that international success, the dance company brings us Broken; a seismic performance investigating man's precarious relationship with the earth.

ALEX FARNHAM'S

Well, here we are. My days of postgraduate study are drawing to a close, and the last minute panics are inbound as my final assignment remains unfinished with the deadline creeping in.

I've started to move out of Bath and renovations to the new flat in Sussex are underway. At the end of the month I'll be moving in and, with any luck, starting a new job (that I'm currently in search of).

So now, it's all coming to a head in a manic frenzy of writing, furniture removal, and outstanding 'to do lists'. I can't think of a better time to write 6-800 words about nothing in particular.

This has been an interesting year for me, involving so many drafts of too many different scripts, which, weirdly, doesn't feel like enough. The aforementioned final assignment is in third draft stages, and I am pleased to say that it's my best work to date. I'm sure I'll write better things, and I'm sure I'll write terrible things, but it's a big deal for me, to be able to say with confidence that I've done something well. On top of this, I saw one of my short plays realised on the stage earlier this month, which was lovely. Before anyone accuses me of an inflated ego, all I'm saying is that I'm proud of myself, which I think is fairly important for me as I jump to the next stepping stone, trying to cross the fiercely flowing river that is my life. (N.B. When trying to deter accusations of ego-inflation, do not compare life to 'fiercely flowing river'). Anyway, I'm moving on, and I'm doing it smiling. Having decided to leave Bath after 5 years, it feels like the end of an era, but at the same time, with everything I've accomplished so far, and with everything else that I still have left to do, maybe it's just the beginning. Is this starting to sound a little too soft and a bit sentimental? Maybe so, but I'll have you know I just put up a gazebo in the wind and the rain. Watch out masculinity, Alex Farnham's in town.

You'll be hearing from me again, as I set off on my adventures as a young professional, which I'm hoping will be enlightening for me and just as entertaining for you. With any luck, it won't just be monthly lessons of 'what not to say in the workplace', as I feel I have a tendency to say awkward things that, although seem funny to me, just make other people feel awkward. The best example that springs to mind is when I ventured out to the shop in search of a large packet of toilet paper for the flat, then saying to the girl at the checkout 'I have a busy night planned', as I handed it over. Needless to say, she didn't laugh. She actually looked a little frightened. Perhaps the fact that it was 9:45 on a Friday night didn't help, but I don't know, maybe I just don't understand kids these days. I was only making conversation! Oh well, at least it only happened the once... (N.B. It didn't).

I ventured out the shop in search of a large packet of toilet paper for the flat, then saying to the girl at the checkout 'I have a busy night planned', as I handed it over. Needless to say, she didn't laugh.

I suppose the moral of the story is: don't scare people. Especially not by saying weird things that would perhaps (and this is at a push) only be funny to someone you know. I guess I've learned a lot of things this year, one being that the best times you have will always be unplanned. Back in July I ended up in the YMCA canteen until 5 in the morning eating pizza and drinking tea with a guy from California and two girls dressed as jellyfish. It was great! A very good friend once told me that 'all we have is memories', and I suppose that's exactly right, the good and the bad. I think I can sum up my year as a postgrad in one sentence, by saying: 'I may have scared a checkout girl by talking about my bowel movements, but at least I befriended some jellyfish.' On top of this, never turn down a free meal, and leaving work until the last minute is fine, because it just makes you work harder and faster. (Another lesson learned includes: Do not put up a gazebo in the wind and rain, because you just get wet and it blows away about half an hour later).

I've thoroughly enjoyed the last year of my life, especially since I've been able to share it with you lot. I'm excited to continue doing so as I move on with the next stage of my life. The way I see it, somebody needs to make pointless observations about things that don't matter, so it may as well be me.

PERFECT GLAMOUR

Awash with nostalgia and old fashioned glamour, Ted Baker's latest womenswear collection is a modern classic with a stylish palette of soft nudes and natural hues, deepened with rich chilli reds and lighter bottle green. Inspired by vintage paintings Ted's penchant for print and colour gets bigger and bolder this season with the signature 40's bloom and bejewelled prints featuring on delicate knitwear and full bodied skirts.

The Ted Baker Christmas collection will be in store at the beginning of November and promises to deliver more of the show stopping dresses we've come to love and adore.

Pictured floral skirt is: UK £129 jersey £116 and matching floral jumper is: UK £99 jersey £89 both available upstairs in the Voisins Womenswear Department.

THE GODESS OF LOVE, BEAUTY, PLEASURE AND BEAUTIFUL JEWELLERY

Launching for autumn/winter 2013, Jersey Pearl have collaborated with award winning Jewellery designer, Kimberley Selwood to create Aphrodite.

Kimberley has been creating her graceful designs for five years. Her attention to detail and passion for design won her the prestigious New Designers Award for Jewellery and her jewellery is now part of the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths Modern Collection. Her ethos is always to create imaginative design combining both quality craftsmanship and wearability.

Created using delicate white freshwater pearls, the collection is set on silver and gold plated silver and finished to the highest possible standard.

Prices start from £39. Available around the island at selected Jersey Pearl stores.

TREASURE ME

There is a new dream-team in fashion; the incredible Swarovski brand has joined forces with super cool jewellery designer Shourouk resulting in some of the most awesome jewellery we've seen all year! This beautiful 'Secret Treasures' jewellery line is inspired by the vibrant colours of India and we'd rather like to collect every piece, they're just too lovely to have to choose between.

Available from Swarovski.

WE WANT

Fabiana Filippi's latest offering embodies effortless Italian elegance. The collection is made up of beautiful cashmere, silk and suede day wear which looks striking yet simple, and feels wonderful; perfect for the cooler days of autumn.

Available from Renaissance, 26 Hilgrove Street.

TREND NEWS

TREND SPOT: MIDI RINGS

These are small pretty rings worn above your first or second knuckles. We're obsessed with them and predict they're going to be everywhere this winter. Manna has just taken into stock beautiful Pernille Corydon midi rings (gold ones pictured from £30) which we can't wait to get our hands on (or should we say 'on to our hands!')

TREND SETTER OF THE MONTH

This month we pay homage to the veritable chameleon of fashion Miss Scarlett Johansson. Achingly cool, Scarlett is not only an awesome actress but also a very talented songstress (check out her brilliant duets with Pete Dinklage). We love Scar because no matter what's thrown at her she'll pull it off; from glamour goddess to androgenous lederhosen to perfectly pritty this girl can do it all.

UP TO THE MINUTE STYLE WITHOUT THE PRICE TAG

It's time to think about getting a new wardrobe ready for the new season. George at Liberty Wharf have this covered; whether you are after must-have fashion without the designer price tag, stylish menswear or cool childrenswear, George is your ultimate one stop destination for the hottest trends to keep you warm this winter. They can take you from day to night without breaking the bank! George has created accessory heaven to add those final touches to your favourite outfits; from affordable riding boots to on-trend cross body bags and statement necklaces for the designer look at a fraction of the price.

GET THE LOOK: SHINING LIKE A STAR

When it comes to diamond jewellery, the A-listers have one number on speed dial: Chopard. From stylish designs to wear every day to showstopping red carpet looks, Chopard create the most glamorous accessories when you're putting on the glitz. Spotted at all the best premières, Chopard jewels even appear on-screen - they're the star of the show in this year's Diana movie, with actress Naomi Watts wearing a selection of unique Chopard pieces throughout the film. Perfect if you're planning a movie star entrance (or if you just want to add some sparkle to your 9-to-5), discover the range of Chopard jewellery and watches at Hettich Jewellers.

And now you don't have to wait to wear your dream jewellery - Hettich offers interest-free credit for 12 months on purchases over £500 exclusively for local residents. Terms and conditions apply, ask in-store for details.

OBJECT OF DESIRE

Sweatshirt hype started a few seasons ago with the Kenzo tiger print and for 2013 we predict that Givenchy's Bambi pullover will be a sell out success, pre-orders are already almost sold out!

Sophie Crawshaw has produced a stunning line of exclusive menswear Pocket Squares and Scarves; twenty-two year old, locally born, Sophie studied Printed Textiles and Surface Pattern Design at Leeds College of Art. In 2012 Sophie exhibited at New Designers, London.

THE COLLECTION

This is Sophie's debut collection and the range is called 'Anything goes'. It has taken her seven months from idea to creation, to finally seeing her wonderfully unique Pocket Squares and Scarves retailing. They are digitally printed and 100% silk. Sophie said that she got the inspiration from "Travels, nature, museums and of course Eureka moments!"

We wanted to know what is next for this rising star of the fashion design world; "I'd like to keep building my SC (Sophie Crawshaw) brand; I'm currently working on a new line for ladies. I'm just trying to embrace the present whilst looking forward to the future development of my company, my ultimate goal is to have my own shop one day."

The pocket square has been rising in popularity over the last year with many top design houses adding them to their autumn/winter collections. GQ have recently claimed that "The pocket square is the single most indispensable tool for defining a man of style these days." A simple pocket square gives men a chance to add a bit of personality and flair to their outfit. It should simply complement a shirt and tie, not match them and although there are endless ways to fold a pocket square men should remember that it is the finishing touch, not the focal point of the outfit. You don't want your breast pocket bulging so take care to fold it well, but keep it simple.

Pictured is Sophie with her Pocket Scarf collection featuring: Carnival, Dotty-About-You, Suave, All At Sea and Metropolis from £35.00. Available to buy exclusively from White Collar on Broad Street. To view the collection visit www.sophiecrawshaw.com Psst, if you pop into White Collar the team there will teach you how to fold your SC Pocket Square like a pro.

Sam, 46, Home Maker

"Leather's in at the moment and is also very sexy and slimming"

Sam's totally right when she says that leather's in at the mo! Why not try fashing it up with some dark florals to give your A/W 2013 wardrobe a real kick and grunge twist. Leather doesn't have to be 50 Shades of Grey...

Vanessa, 18, Retail Assistant

"I love colour blocking!"

This look is Parisian chic with a twist... Vanessa has taken a classic outfit and really fashed it up - colour blocking to the max!

Melissa, 21, Student

"Just threw it on"

We do love a good graphic print and these bold stripes just ace it! Sticking to a monochrome palette, Melissa trendifies her look even further adding a statement scarf to just top those style stakes!

Helena, 46, Housekeeper

"My favourite colour is black and I like leather"

Helena's wetlook leggings are a staple in anyone's wardrobe! Whack them together with a leather jacket and bam, you've got a winning look!

Ariel, 18, works at RBC

"It's rainy and I didn't have an umbrella so I wore a hat"

Parisian chic strikes again this A/W 2013! However, with her leather boots and snapback cap, Ariel's given this look some grunge - adding some edge for a bang on trend outfit.

Coral, 23, works in a bank

"I'm just testing out my new coat!"

Loud fashion-clash prints are big on Gallery Mag's A/W wish list and Coral's already beaten us to it! We simply love her coat - it's a statement piece everyone should invest in!

SKIN SAVIOUR

Like many, I have a fairly fluid system of subjective beliefs when it comes to my own personal skincare routine. I'm also partial to commercial forces – the salespeople, the media and the aestheticians.

When Gallery suggested I take a trip to Rio Hair and Beauty, I jumped at the chance. The treatment at stake – Face Mapping by Dermalogica. This expert skin analysis promises targeted results through a 15-minute consultation, which gives an insight into your skin's past and present.

After being appointed a Professional Skin Therapist I quickly learn that the lotions and potions I live by are far too rich for my skin. I have a total of 14 zones that make up my very own facial landscape and each of these zones boasts a different condition.

Rather than relying on packaging, fragrance and word of mouth, Skin Mapping is a revolutionary skincare saviour that takes the guesswork out of selecting a foolproof regime. The entire Rio experience, from start to finish, is highly recommendable, and despite arriving make-up free, my therapist made me feel completely at ease.

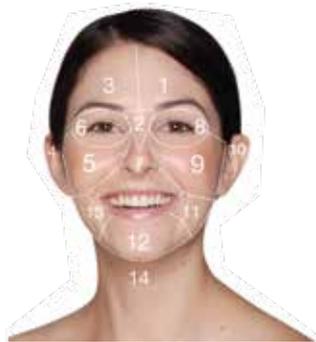

Skin Mapping is not only extremely interesting it's also beneficial. For years

I've chosen products quite simply because they're in the media spotlight. I never stopped to think that each and every individual requires a different solution.

At the end of my consultation, I was handed a skin prescription, which serves as your very own customised visual guide. I was also given a goody bag containing several trial products, all of which are tailored to my specific needs.

Will I be going back? I enjoyed the experience so much; I've even booked myself in for a facial.

JO MALONE LAUNCHES BOUTIQUE IN VOISINS

Hurrah I hear you cry! This much loved quintessentially British brand is bringing its plethora of delicious smelling treats to our fair isle.

Each fragrance is crafted from the highest quality ingredients, tailor-made and exquisitely simple, but always a little unexpected. Jo Malone also makes the perfect gift (hint, hint) because everything you buy is immaculately presented in their iconic cream and black box, finished off with a luxurious thick bow.

We're addicted to their original classic Lime, Basil & Mandarin (you must try it!), but we've also just heard about their latest offering; Peony & Blush Suede which sounds so delightfully pretty that we're sure it's going to win over our senses.

Jo Malone now available at Voisins.

GOING TO NEW LENGTHS

Once a preserve of pop princesses, lash extensions are now a favourite amongst the fashion and beauty brigade.

As a newbie to the world of eyelash extensions, I was both anxious and excited to try this upcoming beauty craze. Once inside the confines of the salon, and my anxieties quickly melt away. Tucked beneath a warm blanket, my therapist is more than happy to explain the ins and outs of this must-try treatment.

I'm not talking about the thick black strip lashes donned in a wonky fashion for an evening on the tiles, these particular extensions come in the shape of individually applied lashes that can last up to six weeks.

I entrust my own lashes and brows to Sarah Hosty, my therapist for the hour at the Eye Candy Lash & Beauty Studio. Each singular lash is applied with extreme precision – and not dissimilar to a spa-like treatment, soothing sounds fill the beauty studio whilst I sit back and relax.

With a huge selection of colours, curvatures and styles to choose from, you can cherry-pick the lashes that best suit your personality, and the results are transformative. My make-up free skin appears subtly made-up, whilst my eyes appear fuller, fluttery and doe-like.

It's easy to see why eyelashes have become all the rage, and not just a one-off look for a party, but a necessity for everyday make-up.

new ultrasoothing eye serum

Finally, powerful anti-ageing care for sensitive eyes!

The eye area is not only the "window to the soul," but also one of the first areas of the face to show the signs of ageing in the form of fine lines, sagging and dryness. Recent advances have spawned a wide variety of topical anti-ageing eye treatments, but none of these products address the needs of the millions of people who suffer from eye-area sensitivity.

That is, until now! The International Dermal Institute has developed a unique approach that delivers the best of both worlds – an effective anti-ageing treatment, combined with the soothing benefits so desperately-needed by your sensitive skin. UltraSmoothing Eye Serum uses a unique blend of age-fighting actives to reduce the signs of ageing at their cause, whilst delivering simultaneous relief from the three main triggers of skin sensitivity – immunogenic inflammation, neurogenic inflammation and compromised lipid barrier.

WORDS TAMARIN WILKINSON

FOOD! ENJOYABLE! ESSENTIAL! YET ALSO FULL OF HIDDEN INGREDIENTS!
IF YOU'RE STILL STUNNED BY THE RECENT HORSEMEAT SCANDAL, HANG ON TO YOUR HATS -
THERE MAY WELL BE RAT FUR IN YOUR CHOCOLATE AND TOXINS IN YOUR BEER.

Ever since Morgan Spurlock went live with an inexplicably well-preserved jar of fries in Super Size Me, more of us than ever before are holding a magnifying glass up to what we eat. And unfortunately for us, it's not only the fast victuals that boast the shelf life of the undead.

Banned antibiotics, allergy medications and antidepressants are just a few of the ingredients pumped into our poultry, and for those of you with a fondness for cheese

- there's more cow in there than you think! From feathers in our bread to fish bladders in our ale, does anyone really know what they're eating anymore?

Don't even get me started on bread, recent research has showcased a laundry list of ingredients, bleach being just one of them! And would you believe me if I told you L-Cysteine (an amino acid used to prolong the shelf life of commercial produce) is human hair gathered from the floors of barbershops and salons? The easiest way to avoid this is to buy from a bakery, or better still, bake your own.

A celebration often calls for a round of beers, yet would you be as happy to say cheers to a pint produced from the swim bladder of a fish? 'I didn't think so'. And how about ice-cream - a delicacy to most on a hot summer's day. However, if I were you, I'd steer clear of vanilla, strawberry and raspberry assortments - you may in actual fact be dining on beaver's urine and anal secretions. Despite this, such an additive is FDA-approved, which gives it the right to don the label of a 'natural flavouring'.

Next time you stop by your local fast food joint, think again about an order of chicken nuggets. With only fifty percent 'actual' chicken to their name, they're more synthetic than in a silicone breast implant.

Would you ever order boiled beetle shells from a menu? What about food produces that contain 'natural red dye'? The 'natural' part is derived from female cochineal insect shells boiled in a concoction of sodium carbonate and ammonia solution. Despite how it sounds, dining on bugs is a lot more appealing than dining on petroleum - just another of the products used to create artificial colourings.

There's nothing quite like warm toast smothered in peanut butter, yet with each jar containing on average five rodent hairs, it's a wonder it's so popular. How about sipping on a pint of antifreeze? If your drink of choice contains propylene glycol, then truth be told, you're doing just that.

As a society, we are three stone heavier than we were in the 60's. However, this weight surge isn't due to consuming more and exercising less, it's down to our unconscious sugar addiction.

In the 1800's obesity was a rarity, in fact it was such a marvel, Daniel Lambert (the first known obese man) charged passing individuals a shilling just to see him! Some two hundred years on and we're in the midst of an obesity crisis, and fifty-four stone plus is no longer a prodigy - despite what you think, we're all getting bigger - a change that has been concealed by bigger car seats, elasticated trousers and ample changing cubicles. What's it all down to? The answer is quite simple - the sheer amount of hidden sugar in today's store-bought food is a phenomenon in its own right.

Label trickery is rife today. Cereal assortments often promoted as whole grain, fibre and wheat in actual fact contain more than half their weight in sugars!

Food is no longer a passion it's a convenience. From the perfectly sculpted cucumbers to the six-week old giant prawns - pumped with growth hormones to speed up their cycle - the food we eat today is no longer real, it's genetically modified, with low fat options (although promoted as a healthy alternative) standing solely as a money-making machine.

Ironically, the so-called 'salubrious' supermarket selections are often the ones to watch. Dairy intolerant individuals keen to swap milk for soya may not be so keen to learn that this widespread alternative to cow's milk is actually created using casein (milk proteins).

Processed meats - another food fad - many of which claim to be a low fat and convenient. Yet instead of flying the flag for sodium nitrate (one of their main ingredients), they hide these details in a small corner on the back of the packet.

And those of you that believe gluten to be the route of all evils, have you ever actually tried making your own bread? Unless you're celiac, I'm almost 100 percent certain it's not the gluten you're allergic too, but the preservatives. Today's inorganic supermarket produce has been linked to diabetes, near-obesity, illness and high cholesterol.

On that note, anymore for anymore? If you're happy to continue dining on a menu of sulphites, preservatives and arsenic then be by guest. If not, I suggest you take full advantage of Jersey's locally grown produce - good honest food.

COOKING FOR A CAUSE

When I was asked to take part in the Romeril's media cook-off - I have to say I was slightly apprehensive. I'm a strict recipe follower. The concept - each contestant picks a mystery bag of food, and with the assistance of a Miele chef is granted ten minutes to discuss possible menus, and 20 to prepare the chosen dish.

Up against JEP's Harry McRandle and sports correspondent Rob Jones, I set to the challenge ahead - my chosen dish - Teriyaki style steak on a bed of warm Mediterranean vegetables drizzled with balsamic and beetroot glaze.

Knowing I had only 20 minutes to attempt the task before me, I gave it my all. Chopping onions whilst trying not to cry was a challenge in its own right, but once in the swing of things, my culinary skills came into play.

Scoping up the prize, along with £150, which I've chosen to donate to Guide Dogs for the Blind, I even impressed myself - especially when the offerings from fellow contestants looked extravagant to say the least! Harry expertly rustled up a salmon and ratatouille concoction, whilst Rob opted for a pork chop with a side of blue cheese sauce.

Judging this year's dishes were Mike Alderman and Miele expert Kirsty Racki (who of course was on hand to help out in the kitchen).

This year's event was the biggest yet, and also celebrates Romeril's additional 5,000 sq. feet of retail showroom. As part of the Inspirational Home Show, I was given the pleasure of cooking up a storm in one of their impressive show kitchens, which thankfully for me included a Tepan Yaki style cooking plate.

Top: Gallery's very own Tamarin scooping (boom boom) up first prize in the cook-off. Cop that, other journalists!

TRICK OR TREAT

Make sure you bite first this Halloween! Hotel Chocolat have got delicious treats for everyone. We love their surprise collection of horrific Halloween figures cast in angelically creamy white chocolate or ghoulishly good milk chocolate. Also we're sure that the bloodcurdlingly delicious chocolate eyes filled with gory red runny caramel will go down a scream. The Tiddy Vampires cast in 70% dark chocolate mean that not just the children will enjoy Halloween this year and not forgetting their hair-raisingly horrendous collection Boo!

If you're looking to celebrate in style this Halloween whether it's behind the sofa, at a Halloween party or keeping marauding trick-or-treaters at bay, then look no further than these magnificently monstrous, terrifyingly tasty chocolates.

AMOOZEBALLS AUTUMN MENU

Eat yourself well this season and jump on board the whole food and plant based food revolution; using local, organic seasonal produce to get the best out of what we are eating on a daily basis!

Sitting alongside the popular salad bar at Moo will be a delicious new Hot Menu, with two hot options a day, new wraps and plentiful soups, one which will be dedicated to detoxing.

Hot Berry compote will sit on top of their fabulous fat free Fro Yo, and they hope to offer a range of hot drinks this year with warm Moo Chai, Coffee and hot detox/energising homemade drinks along with their wonderful range of prestigious kusmi detox teas!

Serving fresh juices and smoothies, all using quality fresh ingredients, and tried and tested to have the best colour, taste and health benefits, pop in and see them for your Mootox. Moo are to happy advise people on juices for detoxing and offer detoxifying food options for people leading into the cooler seasons.

Moo is the place for warm breakfast too, using organic oats to make homemade almond milk porridge with a variety of different flavours throughout the week, they will also be offering a gluten free quinoa porridge daily.

Offering feel good food for everyone, to make you glow from the inside out. Moo has been open less than a year and is charging forward, must be all that food goodness..... "Let food be thy medicine and medicine be thy food" - Hippocrates

MIX-UP, LOOK SHARP..

Nobody's perfect, and not wanting to let good food go to waste it didn't take long for the Gallery team to polish off the cupcake creations cooked up to celebrate our 100th issue last month.

We must have been on a blinding sugar high when it came to labelling the who's who of cupcake crafting as there was a slight mix up [no pun intended - honest], so here they all are again for you to marvel at. All that sugar. I'm off to lie down for a bit.

HE'S BACK!

Chef Wayne Pegler, who has more than 20 years' experience in the catering industry, is re-joining Dolan Hotels after a year in the UK.

Mr Pegler, who was head chef at The Somerville Hotel for ten years, moved to the UK in 2012 after being invited to be involved in the opening of properties belonging to a chain of 150 family-run restaurants under the "Brakespere Group" in the South East of England. He played a key role in the development project looking at the design of kitchens and menus for the properties, working alongside the former manageress of the famous "Fat Duck", Tuesdee Dixon.

After the successful launch phase, Mr Pegler took the decision to return to Jersey having gained many news skills which he is now putting to use at The Somerville Hotel. 'I am delighted to be re-joining Dolan Hotels and the team at The Somerville Hotel. I have returned with many new ideas, which will be introduced to the menus in the hotel's restaurant, Tides,' said Mr Pegler.

Bill Dolan, Chairman of Dolan Hotels, said he is pleased that Mr Pegler will be re-joining the team. 'I am delighted that Wayne is returning to Jersey and to the Dolan Hotels Group. He was an extremely popular head chef, and helped us to establish Tides as one of Jersey's premier restaurants and so it is fitting that he should be the man to move the restaurant to the next level.'

Before moving to Jersey 12 years ago, Mr Pegler gained experience at some of the UK's most prestigious restaurants and hotels including a stage at Gordon Ramsay's Aubergine Restaurant in London, La Tante Claire with Pierre Koffman in London, Middle Thorpe Hotel in York, The Lanesborough Hotel, Hyde Park Hotel, The Canteen Restaurant, Chelsea Harbour in London, The Vermont Hotel in Newcastle and the Coombe House Hotel, Devon.

A GRAND ACCOLADE

GRAND Jersey's restaurant manager and master sommelier, Shaun Corrigan, has reached the final of the Academy of Food and Wine Service's UK Restaurant Manager of the Year 2013 competition.

'It was tough going this time and I have to say I am thrilled to have made it through to the final. The standard of competition was extremely high and it's such an honour to have reached the next stage,' said Mr Corrigan.

The winner will be announced at a gala dinner on 7 October.

Mr Corrigan is also representing the hotel at the AA Hospitality Awards next Monday. The hotel has been shortlisted for a prestigious AA award for its top quality wine.

CHEFSPEAK

KITCHEN SECRETS ARE OFTEN KEPT UNDER WRAPS, HANDED DOWN THROUGH THE GENERATIONS AS A CLOSELY GUARDED SECRET. WHERE'S THE FUN IN THAT ? WE'RE ALL ABOUT CARING AND SHARING! SO WE ASKED A HANDFUL OF JERSEYS CHEFS TO SPILL THE BEANS AND ASKED THEM...
WHAT IS YOUR SECRET INGREDIENT?

Steve Smith
Bohemia

White Balsamic Vinegar. Fantastic for pickling fruit and vegetables without having to put any heat through them. Saves making a brine and has wonderful balance of sweet and sour.

Abbie Hosegood
Mange Tout

LOVE....a meal or a dish will always taste better when a bit of love is added! If there is no pleasure in what your doing, how can it possibly be good. Chefs are often accused of being over sensitive over their dishes and criticism of them, I believe this is because they put there all into creating something, it's very personal. So sprinkle liberally... trust me, it works!

Steve Walker
Sirocco at The Royal Yacht Hotel

My secret ingredient is Salt. Without it nothing savory will taste as good, also it can be used in desserts to enhance pastry's or salted banana caramels, it's the most simple of ingredients but a king when it comes to flavour!

Marcus Calvani
La Cantina

Fine quality salts. I use them all over the place, just a pinch even in you chocolate mouse or torte, it intensifies the flavour. Smoked salt, Fleur de sel, Hawaiian black lava, Red Alaea clay salt, and even Anchovy purée which I use to replace salt in some savoury dishes, all such different flavours.

Peter O'Neill
OH Cafe at Jersey Opera House

There's nothing secret about my ingredients. My dishes are homemade but I don't keep that under wraps! No sssshhhhh  here!

Damon Duffy
Salty Dog

Not strictly a secret but a really useful ingredient for those in the know... Asafoetida. It's a spice used in food as a condiment, as a digestive aid, look it up on Wikipedia - it's interesting and it helps with windy bottoms!

Danny Moisin
Danny's

Lately I have been cooking with Wattle Seeds and Sumaq, they have an awesome zingy flavour when combined and give certain dishes that unusual wow flavour! I could tell you which dishes but then I'd have to kill you x

Peter Brewer
Randalls

Coconut Oil. A healthier alternative to any other cooking fat/oil and it gives a subtle flavour that seems to go well in just about anything. Its usage was forced onto me by my girlfriend as she wanted to eat healthier and to be honest I was dead set against it at first, but then after several kids dishes I was converted.

Paul Le Brocq

My secret ingredient is passion. Our kitchen is run on passion, you can see it in our dishes! Passion has got us in The Good Food Guide 2014 for the fourth year in a row!

UNDERGROUND

TURBOT

Hidden in former German bunker at St Catherine's Bay are 6500 Turbot *give or take a few! Dave Cowburn worked as a deep-sea trawler fisherman for many years, but changed to turbot farming largely because working on land and sleeping at home every night is a bonus! He has since reeled in the rest of the family, and together they produce delicious Genuine Jersey Turbot.

Wild turbot is hard to come by off the coasts of Jersey, so Dave and his family have found an answer in their successful turbot farm, the old gun emplacement houses the fish in roomy tanks filled with fresh sea water, from tiny 50p-sized turbot juveniles weighing just five grams to four-year-old turbot weighing about two to three pounds. It takes 3½ years for them to grow to a marketable weight: the 2-3lb weight is the most popular, because the bigger a fish grows, the greater the proportion of bone to flesh.

Fish-farmed product can often be less tasty and distinguishable by the thick layer of fat between skin and meat which occurs because the fish are fed growth supplements. However, in the case of Jersey

Turbot, there is no more fat than in wild fish, and the quality of their product has been attested by celebrity chef Marco-Pierre White, not known for his commendation of fish farming.

The sea water in which the fish live is totally 'natural' - there is no filtration and no medication or chemicals are added. They are fed on specially prepared and imported organic fish food, and the rearing process could be described justifiably as '99% organic'. Because of this Jersey Turbot is a firm favourite with many local restaurants. Sounds yummy to us. Daves Turbot Bunker is open to the public for tours and you can even pick a fish to take home for dinner!

UNDER THE

SEA JERSEY

Jersey squeezes 92,000 humans into a little over 45 square miles or 117 square kilometres at high water. However around the time of equinox, we enjoy some of the greatest tides anywhere on earth, with 12+ metres of vertical movement between high and low water in less than six hours.

When the tide retreats, Jersey can swell to more than double its land mass revealing a whole new world of precious marine habitat, perfect for exploring. That's where Sea Jersey comes in!

Sea Jersey was created to help bring the nature and culture of this lesser-known 'other half of Jersey' to the attention of a wider audience. Every centimetre of Jersey shoreline will reveal something of interest to the inquisitive observer and Andrew Syvret is an enthusiastic teacher of this thriving ecosystem, all its intricacies, its ecology, habitat, geology, archaeology and climate.

Andrew is also a bucket of wisdom when it comes to foraging within this precious ecosystem. He collects, prepares and supplies edible seaweeds to restaurants and direct to our eager mouths. For centuries, Jersey farmers have harvested seaweed as fertiliser for meadows to enhance the flavour of the famous Jersey Royal potatoes. Andrew is happy to teach you which sea vegetables and marine produce are best to enjoy after a busy day of foraging.

Go explore, take a "Two Towers Moonwalk", the 'Green Street to Gorey' or embark on a 'West Coast Odyssey'. Or simply tuck into some fresh foraged edible Jersey seaweed!

Business or leisure?
We take a look into Castle Quay

FEATURED PROPERTIES:

Our fortnightly printed roundup of the latest hot homebuying picks

THE APARTMENT PROJECT:

A ROOM WITH A VIEW

WORDS TAMARIN WILKINSON

DESCRIBED AS THE GO-TO DESTINATION FOR BUSINESS, PLEASURE, SHOPPING AND LEISURE – CASTLE QUAY ISN'T JUST A DEVELOPMENT; IT'S A WAY OF LIFE. REGARDLESS OF TIME, IT'S HERE WHERE FAMILY, FRIENDS, CO-WORKERS AND CREW ARE ABLE TO MEET, EAT AND GREET, WHILST ENJOYING THE ASTOUNDING VIEWS.

With a backdrop that boasts an inspiring marina setting – complete with historic vistas, a street café ambience and a stunning skyline – this is the perfect place in which to build a home, office or commercial environment.

Winning awards for the Best Mixed Use Development and Best Apartment Project, it comes as no surprise that Castle Quay is home to a variety of vibrant businesses, including Cooper and Co – a shrine to some of the world's most renowned coffees – Monsooned Malabar, Columbian Excelso and Ethiopian Yergacheffe to name just a few. The Castle Quay Food Hall – a treasure trove of ingredients guaranteed to make you a banquet in no time, and when you don't feel like cooking at home, make time for Tiffin – a restaurant come teahouse, serving everything from deli-style breakfasts to Venetian cicchetti. The Organic Kids Nursery – the perfect place in which to entertain the little ones, where activities include smoothie master classes and yoga for children.

Other ventures include Sunseeker Channel Islands – with a harbour backdrop, this top-notch boating venture fits in perfectly with the many vessels at Castle Quay. The Dental studio, which offers a variety of specialist services in an easy-to-access location and a medical suite featuring treatments not yet offered to the rest of the island.

And for charity – The Taking Part Making Art Scheme – supported and managed by Jersey Mencap boasts ample studio and exhibition space.

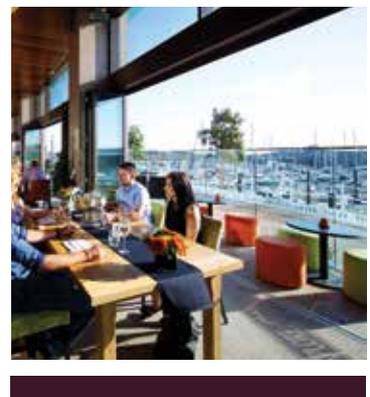

At present there are six available commercial units to lease, which range in size from 898 to 7000 plus square feet. They currently have planning use for restaurant, retail and office space and remain the perfect location for budding beauty therapists, boutiques and businesses alike. The units, which have planning consent for office, offer the ideal opportunity for a private offices outside of the home with the larger unit's ideal for any growing finance business.

This is a place that suits a variety of lifestyles, further accommodated by the nearby gym, swimming pool and cinema complex.

Dandara have also opened their new sales suite here, which boasts American retro influences and a 50s-style Westmount show apartment to match - exposed brick walls, quirky red patent lights and hip artwork make up this New York-enthused space. ●●●●

At present there are six available commercial units to lease, which range in size from 898 to 7000 plus square feet. They currently have planning use for restaurant, retail and office space and remain the perfect location for budding beauty therapists, boutiques and businesses alike.

With an abundance of appeal, space and choice, Castle Quay certainly takes advantage of Jersey's 2,000 hours of sunshine, whilst still allowing scope for the winter months - comprising of a 10,000 square feet Chart Room. While all sea facing commercial units benefit from summer and winter terraces, allowing residents and visitors to enjoy the island's year round seasons, as well as Jersey's renowned sunsets.

With 50,000 square feet of new commercial space, Castle Quay opens up a number of possibilities for both residents and the business sector. 'We're not trying to compete with King Street, we're quite simply creating contemporary living away from the hustle and bustle of St Helier'.

Castle Quay boasts a contemporaneous style and feel, very true to the acclaimed architect Eric Kuhne, employed to design this mixed-use scheme. Both Le Capelain House and Millais House showcase a safe, hotel-like environment. In fact, they're the only apartments on the island to house a fully manned lobby and one that emanates a plush style, complete with comfy sofas, architectural reading material and sophisticated lighting.

The remaining prestigious apartments available to buy appear set amidst tree-lined boulevards and expertly landscaped courtyards. The light-filled living spaces are designed to a high specification and each of the show apartments stand as a platform to extremely different styles - revealing an abundance of interior possibilities - from luxury white collar living with wooden flooring to quirky seaside styles and distressed furnishings. Most apartments come with an allocated parking space and 50 spaces have been allotted to commercial users.

So what does Castle Quay have in store for the future? This thriving waterfront destination is currently in talks with a new restaurant operator, which will only bring another aspect to this constantly growing community, making it the number one place to be seen in Jersey. It's only now that people are beginning to realise what Castle Quay is all about.

DO YOU KNOW WHAT AN ORANGERY IS?

Thinking of getting a conservatory? Have you thought about an Orangerie? The simple difference between the two structures is that an Orangerie is seen as a more permanent home extension, they are more substantial house additions created using a higher proportion of brickwork than a traditional glass conservatory. Orangeries give you better insulation, more privacy and easily lend themselves to being used as a more formal room such as a kitchen or dining space whereas conservatories tend to be used as a sun room or a playroom. An extension of this sort can let lots of light into a home and they make fantastic additional open plan areas when used to extend family rooms or kitchens.

The David Salisbury Orangeries pictured are available through Style Group in Jersey, call 744281 to talk to one of their experts.

MAKE THE MOST OF THE EARLY NIGHT SKY THIS WINTER

It's not great getting home after work in the dark, but what would make it a whole lot better is being able to hop into your own all-singing all-dancing spa to ease away the stresses of your day.

The new Master Spa Twilight Series of home spas gives you blissful hydrotherapy with a calming cascade of gently glowing lights and music! So you can lay back and gaze at the stars letting any worries melt away. Visually this is the best looking spa we've ever seen, it really looks incredible. There are lots of models to choose from so you can find one which will fit perfectly into your home or garden. We were really impressed with the Master Spa 'Eco Pur Filtration System', which lets you have clean and sparkling spa water without using too many harsh chemicals, plus it's better for the environment!

The Twilight ergonomic seating is designed to cradle and support your whole body, the seat in your spa would be the best seat in your house! The spas also harness bio-magnetic therapy which has been used for years to improve circulation, relieve muscle pain and reduce swelling.

To find out more visit the team at Romerils or call 738806 to speak to their experts.

WE WANT ONE!

1. The Tempo Drop is a modern version of a weather forecasting storm glass. It's made of a sealed glass container, filled with distilled water, camphor, and ethanol. The changing appearance of the liquid transforming from clear to cloudy to crystal flakes lets you predict sunshine, cloud or thunderstorms! We can't say for sure if it works, but either way the patterns created are beautiful.

Available from www.japanrendshop.com

2. The Cooper Cooler rapid beverage chiller is the sort of gadget you invent with friends over a boozy dinner, but Coopers have actually gone and done it! This streamline baby will cool cans in one minute and wine bottles in 6 minutes by rotating the drink and spraying it with ice water!

Available from www.coopercooler.com

3. Since it's Halloween this month we couldn't resist including these fun skull spatulas. These also make the perfect present for any fashionista who have got their own home, adding a stylish touch to the kitchen, skulls are soooooo in this season.

NOW IS A GREAT TIME TO INVEST IN YOUR GARDEN

McArthur Landscapes is a family run practice with over 20 years of combined design and building experience. Co Owner Katie McArthur has grown up in Jersey, working as a legal secretary for ten years before changing her career path after taking a Foundation degree in Art & Design at Highlands College. She then moved to Cornwall with her husband and six month old son in 2005 to start a degree in Garden Design: Arts & Environment. She graduated in 2008 gaining a First Class Degree and two weeks later gave birth to their second child!

Katie is a preregistered member of the Society of Garden Designers and commented "We have now been building gardens for 4 years, working on a variety of projects including hospital gardens for NHS trusts in the UK, private gardens and courtyards, corporate spaces and planning applications for developers. Every project is different and everyday is an exciting new challenge. We love what we do and strive to produce gardens that our clients will love for years to come."

Her partner Paul McArthur has over 20 years construction experience working for public and private companies and clients in Jersey and the UK and holds a HNC in Construction & Building

Studies. Paul moved from Scotland to the Island at the age of 18 and has undertaken a number of courses at Highlands College. In 2001, Katie and Paul were part of the Jersey Overseas Aid team that built a hospital in Kiwoko, Uganda. Paul was in charge of the build and taught the rest of the team essential skills for the build to be a success.

McArthur Landscapes offers a range of services depending on your needs and budget from a one off consultation to the complete design and build including concept drawings, outline plans, construction details and planting plans.

Whether you've got some ideas about what you might like done, or just want to hand it over to the professionals, their team can help you at every stage, whether it is a simple garden landscaping or a much bigger home extension. They also offer a complete maintenance package from one off touch ups to a weekly service.

So if you're thinking about enhancing your outside space give Katie a call on 07700 708080 and she'll give you a free consultation.

CLEVER IDEAS TO GO UNDERCOVER IN YOUR HOME

WORDS PAUL CLARK, MYPAD.JE

WE ARE ALWAYS BEING ENCOURAGED TO DE-CLUTTER, AND AS EVERYONE MOVES INDOORS FOR THE WINTER IT IS EVEN MORE IMPORTANT THAT YOU KEEP YOUR HOME UNDER CONTROL. THERE ARE PLENTY OF WAYS YOU CAN USE YOUR FURNITURE TO HELP.

This isn't a miniature version of the sofa, it's just a smaller image showing the 'arms' out flat. And a pillow - don't forget to accessorise!

Christmas is coming, and with it the usual round of house guests. If you don't have a guest room, and are considering buying a sofa bed then there are plenty of options to consider.

If you have a coffee table in your living room, and are fed up with seeing clutter on the top, opt for something like the Pad coffee table. It looks stylish, but hides a great deal of practical space including a height adjustable worktop for your laptop, and plenty of places to store the TV remote controls. £425.

Christmas is coming, and with it the usual round of house guests. If you don't have a guest room, and are considering buying a sofa bed then there are plenty of options to consider. Whilst most sofa beds tend to be traditional in style, and quite chunky if your home is contemporary and you prefer a sleek modern look to your furniture then the Venice double faux leather sofa bed is the answer. This is a very deceptive sofa as its easy to use click clack action means it can transform from a sofa to a bed in seconds. It even has three forms as the arms are adjustable so that when it is clicked up the sofa has a modern, curvaceous look. In white or black at £325 (see top image).

Children's bedrooms tend to be one of the biggest clutter zones, and again choosing the right furniture can solve all your problems. The Cameo Childrens' Sleep Station has a pull out desk for homework, a four drawer chest and mini hanging wardrobe for their clothes, and even has a shelf unit for little knick knacks and toys. It comes in white and costs £599.

It's not just children's bedrooms that can get out of control, if your own sometimes resembles a jumble sale then you need the Hollywood sliding door wardrobe. This is the ultimate mix and match range that allows you to custom design your own concept and put all your clothes undercover behind a sleek, clean looking wardrobe door.

You can see the various options available at the new Mypad showroom at Morton & Morton, St Peter's village.

ROMERILS

THE Creative CLASS

Having made a name for being the go-to place for fittings, home decorating & furnishings, outdoor living, furniture and fixtures here in Jersey, it's certainly an interesting journey to delve into the past of an iconic home interiors store such as Romerils.

Set bang in the centre of town and home to the largest interiors diversification on the island, it's hard to miss the now 63-year-old establishment – a gigantic treasure trove of home essentials, and originally the builders merchant brainchild of Mr. R de Louche and Mr. B.G Romeril.

Romerils, which first opened its doors in 1950 as a small shed-like shop employing just five workers, is now a design empire. The brand have chosen to embrace revolution, yet despite their many expansions and reformations, they still remain true to their core values – quality and service never go out of fashion.

Flying the flag for Jersey (despite the founder's retirement in 1970) Romerils still stands as a store that is wholly locally owned and managed. 28,000 square feet of space make for an impressive retail showground – the backdrop to a variety of yearly trade shows and the brand's annual 'Inspirational' Home Show.

It's hard to imagine this mastery of design evolved from a sole builder's merchant, especially when considering the ample showrooms and many products on offer. Yet it's important to remember this space is also combined with a huge amount of expertise.

A company that has been around since the 1950's and has even bigger and better plans in the pipeline is a company that has gained the trust of its customers. With a loyal following, Romerils stands as a Jersey-born business, intent on supporting the local retail market.

The establishment itself is a beehive of activity. There are eight buildings, which have since been cobbled together and added to, one of which includes the old Deutsche Bank, and these showrooms boast other competitive advantages – location and plenty of parking.

From the day Romerils opened, they have vowed to trade with integrity – sourcing the best artisans, the best brands and only staff that know each and every product from the inside out. Their motto so it seems 'the better your team, the better the job.'

This interior-savvy company has been on a fair few off Island retail safaris in its time, and checking out the latest on offer in the mainstream and boutique environment has allowed them to produce a product that is constantly evolving – meeting both the needs and expectations of their clients. Extensive product prototyping fashions perfectionist visions, which means that each and every customer and creation is a logistic accomplishment.

Romerils retail transformation is a one-stop department store for all of the home refurbishment essentials you could ever need.

With a contemporary feel to the new showroom, and interiors now very much a fashionable thing, they have hit the nail on the head – providing an enjoyable shopping experience for those that wish to remodel as opposed to rebuy.

A DIFFICULT ROLE

The Mortgage Shop's role as a broker is now becoming extremely difficult as we attempt to advise our clients on the way forward, especially during the next three to five years.

Our advisers cannot talk up the market, nor can they talk it down, so we have to offer a balanced view taking everything into consideration to enable home buyers and movers to make a decision, taking into account the following facts:

- Bank of England base rate is at the lowest that it is ever likely to be
- The base rate of 0.50% will rise sooner rather than later
- Base rate trackers have been the best advice for the majority of borrowers during the past four years
- 2013 has seen the introduction of very low fixed rates for terms of two to ten years
- Fixed rates, despite being more expensive should now be regarded as the best way forward
- The low monthly repayments on a tracker rate should if possible be overpaid so as to reduce the mortgage term
- The monthly cost of servicing a mortgage for many people on a tracker rate is so low that families must budget for a rate rise sooner rather than later
- Generous underwriting criteria offered by some lenders can result in income multiples of up to seven times being available- imagine what the monthly cost will be if rates rise by 5%
- Jersey property prices would appear to have levelled out, although negotiation is still possible
- There are likely to be many homeowners who will put their property on the market in the next two years as the current large backlog is sold off
- Jersey property prices will eventually have to rise as the market stabilises again
- The increased buy to let activity of investors in recent years could result in rents falling in the future - demand will fall away as tenants start to transact again

ULTIMATE SWEET SPOT

The main concern for first time buyers and home movers should therefore focus upon two factors which are the exceptionally low rates that are available across the board and also low property prices - both will rise, and it is likely that most people will in fact miss the opportunity of hitting the ultimate sweet spot that currently exists and that will not be around for ever.

Chairman of Hearts

Haydn Taylor, 50, has been appointed Chairman of the British Heart Foundation Jersey, succeeding Harry Craig who is retiring from the role. Haydn, who is Jersey born, has been working in banking and stockbroking for over 30 years and was Managing Director of Standard Bank's Stockbroking & Asset Management business in Jersey for 16 years as well as their Private and Corporate Banking businesses in the Island. Haydn has served on the bank's local board as well as a number of Jersey Fund company boards. He has also served as a Committee member of the London Stock Exchange South West Regional Committee and as Treasurer of the Jersey Association for Youth and Friendship Appeals Committee. He is a Fellow of the Chartered Securities Institute. Haydn's background as a senior member of the finance industry and his extensive local network combined with his experience of working with local charities will enable the BHF to further raise its profile and reach in the Island for the benefit of the local community.

Paul Jarvis leads the Alliance

Paul Jarvis has been promoted to lead the Technical Solutions team at C5 Alliance Group following its acquisition of Itex, where he was previously an executive consultant. Paul will head up the firm's Technical Solutions department as it becomes the largest of its kind in the Channel Islands, combining existing C5 team members and former Itex employees into a 28 strong team. With 23 years' experience in the IT sector, 17 of those working with businesses in Jersey, Mr Jarvis was the natural choice for the role, according to C5 Alliance Group chief executive Mark Loane. "Having had a long and successful career in the industry our clients regard Paul as a trusted adviser; he will be extremely valuable in his new role overseeing the Technical Solutions team," he said. Mr Jarvis' previous positions cover a range of IT specialities and he has extensive experience in implementing and delivering complex, high value technical projects and products over the full lifecycle, across a diverse range of technologies and platforms.

First Names Group practitioner makes 'Top 35 Under 35'

A Trust Manager at First Names Group has been named in Private Client Practitioner's annual Top 35 Under 35. Paul Rondel, who is based in the Group's Jersey office has been recognised as a leading practitioner in the trust and corporate services industry. 'Top 35 Under 35' identifies and recognises the rising stars of the private client arena and gives them the opportunity to promote and introduce themselves to the wider industry. A long standing member of the team, Paul joined the Group in 2008 and has continued to develop and hone his knowledge and technical skills throughout his career. He is an affiliate of the CMI, holds an ICSA Certificate and Diploma. Recently promoted Paul, specialises in the provision of international wealth structuring and management services for private clients and their families, principally with UK connections.

This chap isn't Paul, it's his boss, Kevin. He provided the quote below.

*Group Commercial Director,
Kevin O'Connell Comments;*

"We are thrilled Paul has received this recognition. He is a tremendously valued member of the First Names family who deserves to be acknowledged for his fantastic work ethic and the exceptional level of service he delivers each and every day."

Power Women

Heather Tibbo, Director at Crestbridge, has been identified as one of the top 100 women globally currently working in the private wealth management industry. Compiled by wealth management publication Citywealth, the 'IFC Power Women 100' list was published this month and seeks to recognise the most high profile and influential women working in a range of international finance centres. Those named in the list come from a range of backgrounds stretching from the public sector, regulatory and jurisdictional promotional bodies to private client, investment, legal, trust and family office professionals.

A Director within Crestbridge's family office service business, Heather has over 15 years' experience in the private client arena and joined Crestbridge this year from a wealth management business, whose Jersey office she helped establish. Having worked initially in Jersey, Heather spent 11 years working in London before returning to the island in 2010. In her capacity as a lawyer in the UK and Jersey, Heather has previously advised individuals, intermediaries and trustees in relation to offshore matters. If Crestbridge is a name you're not yet familiar with, that may be because it was formerly known as DCG, having undergone a major rebrand this year. The new name, 'Crestbridge', was "chosen to reflect the firm's core brand philosophy, to 'deliver peace of mind', with 'Crest' alluding to the highest possible standards, and 'bridge' referring to the emphasis the firm places on connecting with clients". Those branding firms eh? The firm has increased the size of its team in Jersey by over 30%. Crestbridge administers over US$50 billion of assets across multi-jurisdictional structures and supports a broad range of blue chip clients, naturally.

Fed up with the office bickering about the air conditioning settings, Heather took matters into her own hands...

Candid: A sceptical Martyn stepped into the white room despite fears that there may indeed be a photographer hiding in there somewhere

White Gold

GoldMoney has appointed Martyn White as Head of European Business Development. Martyn was formerly Director of Business Development & Marketing at Sinels Advocates, and prior to this was Senior Business Development and Marketing Manager with Maurant Ozannes. Jersey based GoldMoney continues to expand its operations and Martyn's appointment is a further strengthening of its key staff. He is looking forward to seeking out new opportunities for the company: 'GoldMoney is a business with smart growth plans for the future and I am really looking forward to being a part of that. It is an exciting area of the financial sector and with the continued economic uncertainties an exciting time for gold and silver, both in the short term with events in Syria, and in the long term as Western economies try to maintain their growth momentum and the world watches how India and China deal with their economic pressures.' Martyn is married with twin girls and lives in St Martin. He was Chairman of the Communications sub-committee of the Jersey branch of the Institute of Directors and a full committee member for two years. In his spare time he has represented Jersey in touch rugby and played football for Grouville, but now prefers a slightly more sedate round of golf.

White Tax Director

EY is pleased to announce the appointment of David White as Tax Director in their Channel Islands Tax practice. Since joining EY in 1997, David has acquired more than 16 years' experience across a broad spectrum of tax matters. He is relocating from EY's Leeds office where he works with international and London-based Financial Services clients. Prior to this, David spent a number of years working for the firm in New Zealand, in both Auckland and Christchurch. His international competency is exemplified in his membership of the New Zealand Institute of Chartered Accountants (NZICA) and the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales (ICAEW) of which David is a fellow of both. Throughout his career, David has worked with many top tier clients, including listed companies, private firms and high net worth individuals. He is experienced in helping clients manage complex advisory tax matters, and supporting change management projects. As a result of new regulation, legislation and strategic management decisions, he has worked on numerous large transformation projects for the banking and wealth management sectors working alongside Operations and Finance teams. He has supported clients achieve cost rationalisation and operational excellence by assessing and advising solutions for their systems, processes, data management and tax risks. David comes to the Channel Islands from EY's Personal Tax Centre of Excellence, where he has focussed on supporting Financial Services clients in enhancing tax reporting to their private clients.

Dissatisfied with his candid shot of Martyn (left), the mystery photographer goes on the loose to shoot David mid-sentence

ALFRESCO EVENTS & BARS

Having somewhere to congregate concepts is imperative in the world of business, and a space that is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week is the icing on the cake.

This is exactly the case for Brian Smith – the man behind the prohibition-themed cocktail bar and speakeasy establishment, The Blind Pig – and his newer hypothesis, Alfresco Events and Bars.

So why 4 Wharf Street? Brian chose this office space due to a number of reasons – the reasonable rent, rates that include the necessities such as electricity and WiFi, the fact that there is a shower on site (which means Brian can cycle to work), air conditioning (we’ve had a hot summer) and of course, the location. The Wharf Street offices are bang in the centre of town, and more importantly for Brian, close to the Blind Pig – which I’m still yet to learn the location of...

There are no giant marshmallow buildings or outdoor furniture, parasols and alcoholic beverage vendors that we know of at 4 Wharf Street... These are examples of Brian's work.

After a successful and on-going run with the Blind Pig, which I'm told is a strictly over 21's 'secret' bar, that feeds solely off local business. The décor is a mishmash of Sistine Chapel imagery, chandeliers and Geisha Girls. Brian saw a niche in the market and created something that has never been done before in Jersey - Alfresco Events & Bars.

Working alongside a specialist team of mixologist's ultimately lead Brian to this next venture, and with over 20 years of cocktail experience and new ideas being brought to the mix (many of which were discussed with his friend JP) a mobile cocktail trailer seemed like a natural transition.

This outside Events Company specialises in temporary and event cocktail bars, a variety of futuristic toys and inflatable marquees. The brand currently supply their services to everything from super yacht product launches to garden parties come dance events.

IF YOU COULD SEE YOUR BUSINESS BEING MORE PRODUCTIVE IN A CLEAN AND SOCIABLE OFFICE COMMUNITY, TAKE A TRIP TO BOURNE HOUSE OR HONEYCOMB'S FACILITY AT WHARF STREET. CONTACT PALLADIUM GROUP ON 01534 888554.

New technology is applied to each and every one of Brian's marquees (which come complete with DJ booth and chandeliers) - allowing him to project images directly from a computer to the pop-up's establishment's walls and ceilings.

These innovative cocktail trailers and marquees, comprising mobile bars, hippy shakes and the inflatable cube can cater to anything from a small wedding to concerts serving up to 6000 people!

With future plans to develop the company across mainland UK and Europe, and a variety of big name events in the pipeline, Brian certainly needs an easily accessible office hub - where he can come up with new concepts and also, plan his next inspirational trip, whether it be New York, Paris or London. 4 Wharf Street is the perfect place.

HIGHER EDUCATION: THE WORLD COMES TO JERSEY

Careers Jersey are launching a new event called Study Horizons to help students find out about degrees overseas and in the Island.

The inaugural Study Horizons, which takes place on 7 November at the Royal Yacht Hotel, will feature more than 20 exhibitors from around the world. International universities, on-Island degree providers, the Open University, student finance experts and career advisers will be available to give advice and there will be presentations on a number of options.

The event is designed to show what higher education opportunities are available outside the UK. This includes degrees available in the Island.

Andy Gibbs, Head of Lifelong Learning and Skills, said: "The majority of Jersey students who go to university currently do so in the UK. As fees go up, people are increasingly looking at other locations for the higher education. The aim is to provide a range of information in one place to help students and parents who might be considering different options. Study Horizons will complement our traditional Higher Education Fair, held in March, where UK universities are mainly represented."

The event will take place on 7 November, 2013 at the Royal Yacht Hotel, St Helier, Jersey from 5:30pm - 8:30pm. Places are free but are limited, please reserve your space by going to: www.gov.je/studyhorizon

MYPAD TO OPEN HIGH CONCEPT SHOWROOM CONCESSION WITHIN MORTON & MORTON

Online furniture retailer Mypad is to open a 1,000 sq ft showroom at local home interiors shop Morton & Morton. The showroom which will open on Saturday 28 September will remain true to the online Mypad concept and all sales transactions will be paperless and made via iPad docking stations in store.

Managing Director Paul Clark said the opportunity to become a multi-channel retailer was too good to turn down, 'Mypad has doubled its sales expectations this year already proving that providing an online but local furniture concept does work. We have decided to open the Morton & Morton showroom to focus on our large range of upholstery in both fabrics and leather. At present we undertake individual home visits to showcase our fabric ranges, but the new facility will allow people to visit at their leisure. It will allow us to continue offering our high quality but affordably priced ranges online, with in excess of 1500 products, and to also allow clients to see, feel and touch the quality furniture which is not available anywhere else in the Channel islands.'

The contemporary Mypad showroom will benefit from the excellent parking facilities at the Morton & Morton facility in St Peter. It will showcase key brands, including cabinet ranges from a leading UK designer, and fitted bedroom furniture from top European manufacturers.

In addition, the Mypad.je website is to be upgraded with an additional 500 new products. The re-launch of the site will coincide with the opening of the showroom. "This is an exciting time for us. We are going to continue to offer the levels of service and pricing that customers have come to expect, and will be improving on this with an interior designer available to offer advice, goods on approval and private viewings out of store hours. Mypad is not only providing a retailing concept for the modern age, ensuring that we avoid the high overheads associated with a traditional shop, but we're making sure that our customers always come first.'

2013 CIM AWARDS GO ALL 'GALLERY'

The CIM Awards has become a cornerstone of Jersey's annual business calendar and has long been recognised for celebrating the best that Jersey's marketing community has to offer - and they're mixing it up a bit. The 2013 awards ceremony will be held on Friday 15th November with a bold new theme 'Urban Gallery', throwing a spotlight on the fast paced world of marketing innovation. As part of the new approach and to fit in with this year's theme, shortlisted entries will be displayed during the awards evening in a dedicated gallery environment they've given the moniker 'Strada'.

Steve Cartwright, Chairman of the Jersey CIM Branch said:

"We are delighted to be introducing for the first time a special showcase of marketing talent when we will be displaying

'all' of the entrants to this year's Awards for everyone to see in a bold new theme - Strada, Jersey's very own 'urban gallery' showcasing marketing excellence. Our focus this year is to reflect the changing environment that marketers face, requiring ever-greater levels of innovation and achievement, areas in which Jersey punches well above its weight. We look forward to receiving the entries and I'm sure there will be some tough decisions for the Judging panel."

Entrants have until Friday 18th October to submit their entries, which must fall into one or more of the following categories: Best Brand Campaign, Best use of PR, Best use of Media, Marketing Achievement on a Small Budget, International Marketing Award, Best Integrated Marketing Campaign and Sustained Marketing Achievement Award. Additional awards for the Student Marketer of the Year, and the Judges' Choice Award will also be presented at the ceremony in November.

Prospective entrants can find out more information about the categories, how to submit an entry and attending the awards evening at: cimjersey.com

JERSEY ENTREPRENEURS ON THE SOFA

SO, TELL US WHAT INSPIRED YOU TO GET THIS OFF THE GROUND?

I wanted to try something new, work for myself and see if my interpretation of what pharmacy healthcare should be, is as beneficial to patient care as I think it could be.

I have an ambition to improve current patient care through convenient services, provision of the right resources and education. Couple this with a desire to see people take control of their own health led to the evolution of Restore Health.

I also wanted to be in charge of my own time. Violet, my daughter, is only young (15 months) and I can ensure I don't miss those younger years. Restore Health works on more than one level in that sense.

WHAT DID YOU DO PRIOR TO STARTING THIS BUSINESS?

I worked for many of the traditional pharmacies on Jersey over the years

DID THAT TEACH YOU ANY LESSONS THAT HELPED YOU SUCCEED?

I gained a vast amount of experience from my previous roles for which I am thankful. You learn from all your experiences and you can attribute your development to them but they also allow you to develop a clear picture for areas or people which are under-represented. These are the areas that allow for your innovation, drive for change and implementation of your ideas.

WHAT'S THE HARDEST LESSON YOU'VE LEARNT SINCE STARTING THE BUSINESS?

New experiences are occurring every day and I always try to take a positive spin on each of them.

The hardest was probably financial support. Family have been very kind to help me get up and running. There is no support and no lending to new business out there except from private finance. It's rather frustrating considering how the national government continually iterates how they are investing in start-ups.

ANY FUNNY STORIES THAT YOU HAVE ABOUT THE BUSINESS STARTING OUT?!

Replace 'funny' with 'stressful' and I would have a bucket full of stories!

WHAT ARE YOUR PLANS FOR THE FUTURE?

To lead Restore Health as the main driving force for achieving patient-centred and clinically-efficient healthcare and improved health awareness and education.

WHAT ADVICE WOULD YOU GIVE TO WOULD-BE ENTREPRENEURS?

Follow your dreams. If you don't, you will always work for someone else who has.

VIST: WWW.RHPHARMACY.CO.UK

ABOUT THE BUSINESS

Restore Health provides convenient and innovative services for all its patients to allow them to take control of their health, make the right choices and have access to the right resources to live a healthier life and offers a wide range of FREE patient services, many of them are new and unique to us, including: quick and secure prescription delivery to your home or work place, repeat prescription service - one less thing to worry about, sorting, weekly medication trays - for those who struggle to take their medicines correctly, medication dosage reminder service - a text message to remind you about your daily medicine dose and numerous other services too.

I wanted to create a patient-centred approach to healthcare and Restore Health is a product of that dream. I believe the best healthcare comes from the patient. This is the critical and potentially variable end-point for the delivery of an individual's healthcare. If this is not effective then, no matter how good the preceding steps by health professionals, that individual's health will always remain below ideal. That is what I hope Restore Health can improve and with that people's health in general.

CRAZE

HANDBUILT FROM PLYWOOD AND LARCH AND ONCE A VIKING FORM OF TRANSPORT, COASTAL ROWING VESSELS ARE NOW AMONGST SOME OF THE TRENDIEST CRAFTS ON THE WATER, BUT THAT'S NOT ALL!

On meeting James Salkeld, Stephen Reed, Michael Rive, Luke Cassin and their cox, Rhea Munro, I quickly realise there's more to this sport than meets the eye.

Unsettled weather conditions, tough competition and courses that can extend to an impressive 45 miles, coastal rowing brings a new lease of life to this once reserved sport. In fact, the only similarity to that of the flat-water pastime is in the movement of the stroke.

Swapping fine boats for sturdier models is par for the cause. Battling against the choppy waters, the rowing championships take place on 4000 to 6000 metre courses, where waves, wind and sharp turns only add to the excitement.

Making up a total of 15 years experience between them, Logicalis are dedicated to a strict training regime. An average day consists of a 5.15am start (they all have full time jobs) with Luc in the bow, Stephen in number two, Michael number three and James in the fourth seat - 'I set the pace for the boat' he explains. Rhea acts as their eyes 'it's handy to have someone to help you dodge the condor'

Coastal rowing requires a great deal more endurance than that of river rowing; I'm therefore keen to learn where the guys get their strength, do they adhere to a strict diet plan? 'Because we train on average eight times a week, we don't worry too much about our figures!' Michael says. 'Beer is not a problem'. On a more serious note, James informs me 'it's essential for the team to follow various nutritional plans, especially when in the height of training season'.

SO WHAT DO THEY WEAR ON THE WATER?

'All in one leotards, socks and headbands' says Luc. 'We do not' says James. 'We do however have a fair amount of kit aboard, it's important to remember the oars for one!' 'Then there's the compass, the flares...oh and a cushion for Michael!'

AND THEIR PET HATES?

Surprisingly the rowing machine. 'Rowing indoors is nothing in comparison to taking to the sea. For one, you don't have the elements to contend with. Battling against the tide, wind and waves makes this a challenging, yet enjoyable sport.

ANY TEAM TANTRUMS?

'I'm always telling Luc he removes himself from the boat in the wrong way (he's the one that stops the craft from hitting the shore). 'This backfired when I fell head first into the water' says James.

'It was like a scene out of a comic movie, it all happened in slow motion!' 'Then there was the time we crashed into the youth team... but that's another story!'

THE ADVICE THEY'D GIVE TO SOMEONE THAT WANTS TO JUMP ON THE COASTAL ROWING BANDWAGON?

'Don't do it' jokes one! 'You have to have patience and technique' James says. 'The first year is all about fun, adjusting to coastal conditions and learning how to row'.

AND THE BEST THING ABOUT THIS SPORT?

'Well, apart from the 5am starts' Stephen jests 'you get to see Jersey from a different light' 'I like the early starts' Rhea adds 'the sunrises are incredible!' Judging by the team's surprised faces, I'm not sure the men agree.

THE DOWN TIMES?

'You can become quite short tempered, especially if the weather's bad. Rhea keeps us on the ball though, she'll often shout at us!' says Michael. And sometimes we'll give as good as we get!' concludes Stephen.

The team have come on in leaps and bounds this year. They were neck and neck with the main competitors at the Sark to Jersey race, 'well that was until Stephen's rowlock broke' explains James. Despite this, they managed to battle it to the finish line one oar down, bagging the title of 2nd place.

Sweden was another event to showcase just how much is at stake in one race. 'No one can predict the outcome' explains Paul (the team's coach, sub manager and the man employed to give the guys a kick up the arse every now and then). 'We lost power to the rudder, the entire thing locked' says James. Despite Rhea's desperate screams, the boys looked to be decidedly going against her pleas! 'We could only turn right' explains Luc. The team still managed to position themselves in 11th place, which now makes them 11th in the world. If they can do this with little training and unforeseen technical faults, who knows what next year will bring!

Finally, the team would like to say a big thank you to the individuals behind this year's successes. Logicalis for sponsorship, Sean Lerwill for his demanding strength and conditioning program - www.seanlerwill.com and of course, the Jersey Rowing Club for their continued support

START THEM YOUNG!

Brazilian Soccer Schools was brought to Jersey in 2004 by Will Partington after several research trips to South America and having been personally taught the secrets of Brazilian Player Development by FIFA Brazilian World Cup legends, Carlos Alberto Torres, Paulo Cesar, Jairzinho, Socarates, Careca and Zinho. The coaching programme being delivered in Jersey has also been contributed to by Ronaldo and Juninho.

The Brazilian Soccer School in Jersey has always maintained the view there are no limits to improvement, with the right mind set and quality of practice their method of training inspires players to push beyond existing limitations and transform the way young players involved play and live the game.

Locally over 50% of the Island squads hail from Brazilian Soccer School with a further nine boys receiving professional football trials and two boys have signed contracts with Fulham and Portsmouth FC with another player currently returning to Southampton FC for a second series of trials! These players receive free early morning 1:1 personal football coaching ensuring they are in perfect condition for their opportunity.

Having successfully taught the Brazilian Way, Will then realized that little ones could learn sooner whilst having the time of their life and including their mums and dads this resulted in Socatots opening its doors in November 2011. Socatots is not just about learning the art of football; it is as much to do with key skills as it is anything else. Socatots kids improve their motor skills, concentration, discipline, numeracy, literacy and colour whilst having fun. It is really important that parents get involved in Socatots, each session includes parents participating which gives them great family time in an energetic setting.

Will Partington added "We have the right platform to get the very best out of all our Members. This is supported by Ex-Southampton FC Chairman and English FA Board Member Rupert Lowe whom has recently recognised the benefits children are gaining from the unique Brazilian Soccer Schools and Socatots Programmes. Mr Lowe has a proven track record in nurturing footballers, (Gareth Bale and Theo Walcott to name a few!). Mr Lowe is currently assisting us on several projects including the creation of links with UK and International Schools and Universities along with Semi and Full Professional Football Clubs"

Both Socatots and Brazilian Soccer Schools are offering FREE taster sessions in any class that has availability. To arrange a free taster session please email w.partington@braziliansoccerschools.com or w.partington@socatots.com Socatots runs classes west, east and central 4 days a week for children 6 months to School Age Brazilian Soccer Schools runs classes Island wide 7 days a week for children 4 to 16 years old.

FORMULA 4 SUCCESS ONCE AGAIN FOR STRUAN MOORE

Jersey driver Struan Moore has seen success in the BRDC Formula 4 Championship, this time at the Snetterton 300 circuit. He enjoyed a strong second and third place for the Hillspeed team. On the same circuit where he claimed his maiden F4 win in June, Struan again got the attention of the F4 Championship paddock with his consistent performance showing natural talent.

The strong weekend keeps Struan inside the Top 10 Championship standings, a position he says he wants to retain at Donington Park in three weekends time;

"Starting third on the grid was a big achievement as it was the highest I had qualified all year and it set me up perfectly for a strong consistent streak of finishes for each race. Finishing second behind Jake Dalton and passing championship-leader, Jake Hughes, was fantastic as I was the only other car in that race to challenge the two Lanar team drivers, who had strong pace all weekend. I'm looking forward to Donington to try and claim a Top 10 finish in the Championship."

CONCEPT CORNER

WORDS RUSS ATKINSON

THEY'RE BOXY, BUT THEY'RE GOOD

YES. Just YES. No, not the band that preceded the creation of Asia, so put your air guitars away. I just can't believe how bang on Volvo's latest offering is. Just look at it! The 'Volvo Concept Coupé' moniker leaves a little to be desired, but maybe they burned themselves out with all of the sketching and rendering.

It's based on SPA (that's Scalable Product Architecture, rather than a warm and bubbly relaxing bath) and is an indicator of the style of future Volvo models to come, so says their HQ in Sweden. If you don't believe me, a decidedly Swedish named man called Thomas Ingenlath said this:

"The Volvo Concept Coupé is no futuristic dream car. It is designed to demonstrate the capability of our new architecture: the confident stance, the proportions and the most prominent design signatures. Even though the all-new XC90 is an entirely different type of car, you will recognise the connection instantly when it is revealed next year"

He also said 'Think about the powerful calmness of a lion' later on in the press statement I received though, so don't blame me if they are in fact a bunch of crazy people* telling fibs.

Apparently the nod toward Volvo's P1800 isn't part of the recent fad of creating a retro look but a celebration of their heritage, and do you know what? I'll give them that, because to take something as disgusting as the P1800 and end up with this is undoubtedly worthy of praise.

Those of you who got the reference both here and in the title, give yourself a pat on the back!*

FIRE UP THE... HYBRID?

It's okay, it's okay - if you're still with me having seen the 'H' word associated with the mean-looking Audi concept pictured above then you must pay attention to this next bit before you start tipping tables and stamping your feet: it's got a V8 and is packing about 700 polar bear friendly horsepower. Deep breaths.

Box 'arches are back in and there's more than just a hint of Ur-Quattro in that rear end - if this is a hint of things to come then Audi have still got it. The area in which there's no doubt about them having sewn up is the vehicle lighting design department, and this concept showcases their new MatrixBeam LED headlamps, developed from their R18 Le Mans prototypes. They dynamically assess the vehicle's situation to change from high to low beam using a combination of diodes, reflectors and black magic.

As well as black magic, this concept also sees extensive use of CFRP (carbon fibre reinforced polymers) to keep things as light as possible whilst not reducing structural rigidity. They've even omitted the use of glass lenses in the lighting where possible, showcasing fully exposed diodes to subtly appease the green brigade without us die-hard petrolheads noticing. Sneaky, but we're on to you Audi.

Audi's PR department say that 'the control concept is also focused on the driver', which I suppose is a good place to start. But I'm sure you're all more interested in that TFSI V8 that can use just a single bank of cylinders to save fuel and a 100kW electric motor that adds an extra 400Nm of torque that takes power from a liquid-cooled lithium-ion battery in the boot. Maybe Boeing could learn a thing or two.

OUT OF THE DARK AGES

Imagine Kermit the frog being involved in a lightspeed collision with a Light Cycle from Tron and you're probably fairly close to how Caterham's AeroSeven keeps the name of their most popular seller, albeit one derived from the continuation of somebody else's legacy (not a contemporary Tron reference, honestly) after the flop that was the Caterham 21 which probably saw more success on computer screens in 'Test Drive 4' than out on the road in actual, real life. If only they'd have allocated a little more of the marketing budget to the development side.

They're developing a sportscar in conjunction with Renault that will debut in 2016 and this is a nod to their capability as a manufacturer, as well as a good excuse to translate what they've learnt in Formula 1 onto the road and prove that they can turn around a full vehicle from concept to production in double-quick time - expect to see this one for sale by 2014. Yep, that's next year. It's the first Caterham model to be fitted with traction control via a system imaginatively named CEMS (Caterham Engine Management System) that also offers launch control. If you're adverse to this, they've recently released an even more powerful 'R' series Caterham 7, which will undoubtedly be more up your street.

They've based it on an 'updated interpretation of the highly acclaimed Seven CSR platform' and given it a 237 horsepower engine developed in-house, but as a fully certified cynic I can't help that think that if it ain't broke, don't design a brand new car that looks super futuristic at the front only to be ruined by the lack of concept continuity at the rear. That's a popular saying, right?

WRAITH

With a name that sounds suitably badass to complement with phenomenally badass exterior, there isn't much not to love about Rolls Royce's Wraith. Until Alan Sugar buys one, that is. Wraith is the most technologically advanced vehicle from the prestigious marque yet and if, like me, you didn't think this was a big deal let me share that the gearbox uses GPS and mind-reading techniques (based on your driving style) to determine the most appropriate gear for the path ahead. If they ever let me drive one, I'll be selecting 'full tilt' from the bridge and heading from Grosnez to Anne Port. In a straight line. Naturally, Wraith will know this though, as not only is it written here but it can read my mind.

THE CLASSIC Mini BREAKFAST CLUB

The club was founded in October 2008 by Lee Hotton & Joe Manning, who both started going for breakfast with their Minis on a Sunday morning with a few friends who shared their motoring passion for Minis.

After several meetings other Mini owners began to attend, hence the name "The Classic Mini Breakfast Club". The club even has its own photographer, Helder Luis, known to his club chums simply as Luis. He doesn't own a mini himself but shares the passion for the car as if he did, so he's ok with them!

The club has steadily grown to 68 members with ages ranging from 17 to 70 plus, who meet every three weeks at Green Island for a general chat before heading to St Catherine for breakfast. After breakfast they all travel in convoy for an island tour, often receiving waves from onlookers toots from other drivers. In a positive way, of course. Most people have owned a Mini in their lives, whether as a teenager or an adult and are happy to see them out on the road. The members in the club are like one big happy family, always willing to lend a hand and if you're looking for a part someone probably has one in their garage.

The members in the club are like one big happy family, always willing to lend a hand and if you're looking for a part someone probably has one in their garage.

On Sunday 8 September 2013 the Jersey Classic Mini Breakfast Club was given permission by Jersey Heritage allowing all classic Mini owners to take their cherished cars on to the Mont Orgueil Castle (Gorey Castle) Green for a photo-shoot. BBC Radio Jersey and the JEP all helped promote the event, with two live Radio interviews with the event co-ordinator Paul Winteridge.

Despite the less than ideal weather, 34 cars attended the event with a further 5 that could not make it for various reasons. Included in the collection of 34 cars, was a Mini convertible, a Mini Moke, a 1969 MK1

Morris Mini which had covered 60,800 miles, whilst the newest Mini was a 2001 1.3 Mini Cooper. Everyone who attended said they'd like to make this an annual event, so keep your eyes peeled for the next one! It wasn't just Mini owners who turned up either, they also saw a lot of tourists viewing the cars taking lots of photographs and asking the owners questions about their pride and joy.

PLUG-IN POSTIE

Jersey Post is going to put electric vans through their paces as part of a six month trial to see if they are a viable option for the future of the company's vehicle fleet.

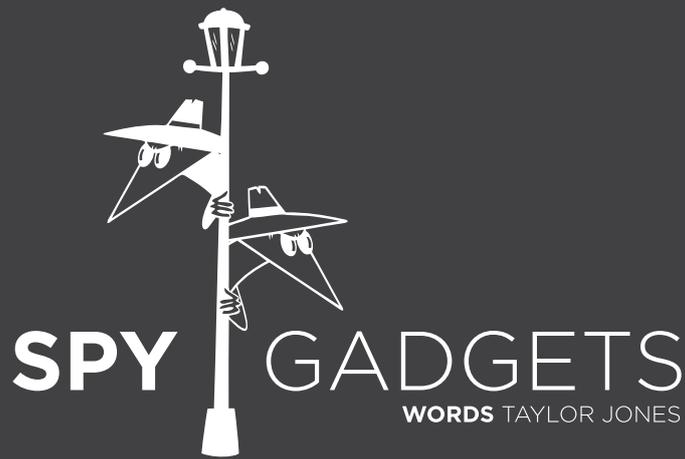

The developments in electric vehicles make replacing traditional commercial vans a viable option for large fleet operators. P&T, the postal operator for Luxembourg, has recently bought 30 electric vans to deliver mail within the Principality.

Jersey Post wants to evaluate the electric vans to see if they can cope with the company's heavy workload while saving fuel and servicing costs and helping the environment. Jersey Post is working in partnership with Jersey Electricity and Bagot Road Garage, who will be supplying two Renault Kangoo Z.E. vans for the duration of the trial. By selecting the same compact van that is currently used by Jersey Post, direct cost and performance comparisons can be made during the trial.

Jersey Post Fleet & Transport Manager Nick Perchard-Rees said: 'It's important that we can quantify all the facts and figures to help us make an informed decision. We won't be going easy on these trial vans just because they are electric. We are serious about reducing our carbon footprint and we need to know the technology is up to the task.'

Jersey Post is a traditional, customer-focused business but is constantly looking for innovative ways to improve efficiency and service. Switching to electric vehicles to complement those postmen and women who cover their rounds by bicycle would provide a complete eco-friendly solution for the company's collection and delivery operations.

Jersey Post Chief Executive Kevin Keen said: 'If this trial is successful it will provide a very elegant solution for how we want to run our vehicle fleet in the future. This is an excellent example of co-operation and partnership between three businesses that are focused on providing an excellent service without impacting unnecessarily on our environment.'

SPY GADGETS

WORDS TAYLOR JONES

EVERYBODY HAS DREAMED OF BEING A SPY AT SOME POINT IN THEIR LIFE.

Whether you've been inspired by the legends like Bond, Bourne and Powers or your childhood was tainted with movies like Spy Kids or Agent Cody Banks, nobody can deny that the suave nature, cool cars and apparent ability to attract the opposite sex without effort are all traits that have made us dream of exposing corrupt governments or walking coolly away from earth-shattering explosions.

However, no spy is worth the time of day without an arsenal of pocket-sized, bank-breaking gadgets. So for those aspiring International Men of Mystery, allow me to be the Q to your 007, and show you all the things you will need for this mission, should you choose to accept it.

RX10 HANDHELD MOBILE PHONE JAMMER

Regardless of the mission, no self-respecting spy would want his or her nemesis being able to contact backup, or even remotely detonate "the device". But how can you stop an evil genius using a mobile phone?! The RX10 Handheld Mobile Jammer of course. Learn to be inconspicuous with one of these handy little bad boys and your lone rival will be no match for your inherent knowledge of all major forms of martial arts will be saving the world in no time. Unfortunately, you're going to need a good make-up guy to make you blend into the crowd, as this jammer only has a range of 30m. Also, be prepared for your tech department to be providing relatively budget gadgets, as this device will set you back roughly £140. But then who needs a laser pen when you can have a good old fashioned torch?

BRESSNER NV 5X50 DIGITAL NIGHT VISION MONOCULAR

The cover of darkness. For most master criminals, it's the perfect place to carry out the dastardliest of plans. Even spies, with all their training, are still only human, and struggle to see without the use of a light, which would be glaringly obvious. So, it's always seemed that, unless the agent is willing to just listen intently, recon missions are not for the nighttime.

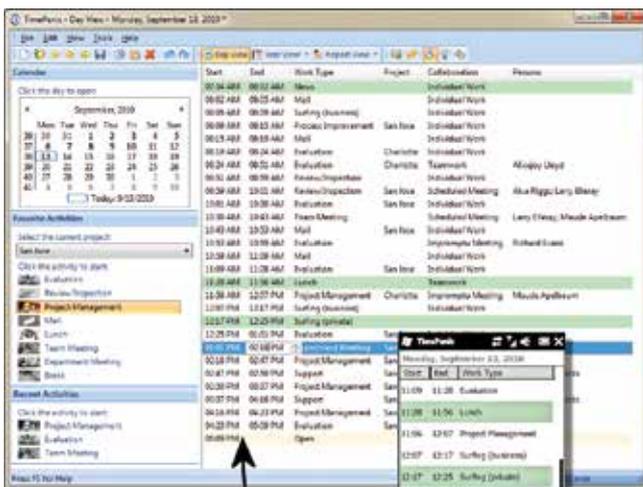

Until now. Bressner's NV 5X50 Digital Night Vision Monocular is an easily portable, easily storable and comfortable way to keep your eye on exactly what is happening at all times. Yes, I realise that there are other night-vision goggles available, but the monocular is (relatively) unique in that you don't need to wear it, and who wants to get into a foot chase wearing heavy gear over their eyes? At only £145, this convenient piece of gear isn't the cheapest on the market, but you can guarantee it will get the job done with clarity you won't find in many other places.

SPYCAMERA CCTV SMALL SPY PEN

Video evidence is pretty hard to argue with in most cases, but it doesn't take an evil genius to notice a camcorder in their face. No, if you want to capture those inevitable moments when the bad-guy thinks he's got you in a safe enough position to reveal his mind-bogglingly brilliant plan, you need something small, something nobody would suspect to be used as a tool to bring down an evil corporation, and something you can keep on you throughout the endless number of fights and chases. Who would ever suspect a pen could be all of these things?

That's right, the Spycamera CCTV Small Spy Pen is the perfect weapon for those times when only a full confession will finish the job, and with a 4GB memory, no plan is too long or with too many twists to record. Although this pen is a little more expensive than most biros, £39.00 is an incredibly reasonable price, especially when you consider that the cost without one could be...humanity.

LM TECHNOLOGIES PS2 KEYSAFE PRO

We all know the feeling. Trying to get onto a friend's Facebook profile in order to, effectively, ruin their lives, but you don't know the password. Another genius evil scheme thwarted by the horrors of internet privacy. You wouldn't think it, but even spies come up against these problems! That's right, evil has changed a little since the days of From Russia With Love. Everything is digitalized now, and the men who just want to watch the world burn all communicate by email, making interception of information even more difficult for the boys and girls on her majesty's secret service.

But no fear! Those behind-the-scenes wizards in the technology department have been hard at work once again. No longer will our brave spies be stumped mid-mission by a pesky password prompt, all thanks to the LM Technology PS2 Keysafe Pro. This little device tracks the keys that are pressed on the computer it's plugged into, allowing the brains of your organization to easily decode what you find and provide a password that will get you access to any computer you want. £25 to save the world from technological destruction? That sounds like a deal to me.

MOBISTEALTH SOFTWARE

If your evil mastermind uses a Blackberry or an Android phone, your life as a spy is about to get a whole lot easier. With the use of this new software from Mobistealth, it is promised that you will be able to fully access all text messages and calls using a Web interface, find their exact location at all times and even check their web history. You don't even need to leave your home to save the world anymore! Another company, Mobile Spy, claims that they have developed a software that works in a very similar manner with iPhones, meaning you can gain access to almost anybody's full call and text registry, and, if you're brave enough, discover what they look at on the internet.

The Blackberry/Android software costs roughly £80 for three months, whilst the iPhone Spy software is only £50. Not bad, considering the costs your organization will save on when they don't have to fly you to exceedingly exotic hideouts half way around the world.

DOUBLE VISION

Apple have launched two brand new iPhones, the 5S and 5C. Designed to appeal to different budgets these latest models keep the iPhone at the leading edge of smartphone technology.

Who needs passcodes?

Wave goodbye to memorising PIN codes and phone locks: the brand new iPhone 5S features a fingerprint scanner. This revolutionary move means that nobody but you, and up to four others, can access your phone - great news for anyone who's ever had their phone stolen!

At lightning speed, the 5S runs a new A7 chip which runs two times faster than the iPhone 5! This iPhone is the world's first and only smartphone to run this CPU, giving it speed that will take your breath away.

Have you ever been disappointed with a photo you've captured? Don't worry - this incredible handset comes with a 'burst mode', which allows you to shoot 10 pictures in only one second - you now have no excuses not to capture the perfect shot! The camera on the iPhone 5S is guaranteed to amaze you, with 15% larger sensors and larger pixels than ever before. It even comes with a slow-motion option on 720p video so you can have plenty of fun with your film-making!

Another high tech chip, named the M7 is able to monitor your movements, which creates a whole new generation of health and fitness apps for you to enjoy! It can even tell if you're walking or driving - put it to the test and see for yourself!

Little Brothers are cool too!

The iPhone 5C can be thought of as 'the little brother' of the 5S. If you're on a budget, this ultra-cool iPhone is for you, as it costs substantially less than the 5S, yet still gives you many of the 5S' impressive features.

Visually stunning, the 5C is the most colourful iPhone yet, available in blue, yellow, green white and pink. With a plastic back, it feels light and compact and even features slip-on silicone covers to add to the appeal.

Whether you're on a budget or not, these latest iPhones are even more impressive than their predecessors. As ever, Apple is setting the pace in smartphone technology and Sure will stock them as soon as they become available.

If you'd like to be among the first in the island to receive one of these latest iPhones, register your interest now by visiting www.sure.com/newiphone or pop into the Sure Store.

PHAT VIBES

Jersey's own superstar DJ - and Airtel-Vodafone Brand Ambassador - Hannah Jacques looks at the Galaxy Note 3 Phablet

Now that the weather's turned and the summer's over, I like big things to perk me up - big tunes, chunky jumpers, and now Samsung's huge Galaxy Note 3 phablet.

A phablet (if you don't know) is a tablet phone. Part phone, part tablet, it's biiiiiig. The Galaxy Note 3's got a huge, fantastic display (5.7" is a whopper) and is clad in classy leather, which I love. It also runs on world's most powerful chipset, has a new 13MP camera capable, can record seriously good video, and comes with an S-Pen which has lots of apps, handwriting-recognition features and drawing tools.

It's in the Airtel-Vodafone store, so if you want something that's big and clever, get there now.

CRUNCHING THE NUMBERS: SMARTPHONE HANDSETS

JERSEY

UK

In Jersey around 55% of us who are using Smartphones and have an iPhone, with just 31% opting for an Android Smart phone, such as a Samsung or HTC. In the UK those figures are 17.3% for iPhone and 62.5% for Android.

Beyond Computers Gadget of the month

Sonos PlayBar

The soundbar for music lovers. Sonos' PlayBar complements HD television screens with richly textured HiFi sound as well as being able to wirelessly stream all the music on earth.

It's simple to set up, control and expand and requires just two cords: one power cord and one optical cord (both of which are included). The PlayBar synchronises with other Sonos speakers wirelessly, just as you'd expect.

It also understands and speaks most IR remotes' language and can be controlled by free apps for your Android®, iPhone® or iPad®. It plays all sources plugged in to your HD TV: cable/SAT boxes, Blu-Ray players and video game consoles. In short, if it's connected to your HD TV, PlayBar will play it!

Also available separately is a wall mount so that you can take advantage of the sleek, contemporary design and turn this functional bit of technology into a conversation starter in your home or office space.

Anyone FOR A Waltz?

WORDS TAMARIN WILKINSON

As a newbie to the Channel Isles, I'm hell bent on trying everything Jersey has to offer. Aside from the glorious beaches, fine eateries and cute cafes, the island is also home to its fair share of must-try events - Jersey Live being one of the more renowned!

Described as a boutique Ibiza affair, I was more than happy to don my festival gear and head on down to the showgrounds for a fun-filled two days. On arrival I was met by an excitable buzz, yet one that suggested the festival was only just beginning to get into the swing of things.

Having already set my sights on eagle-yeing a variety of bands in action, and with the line-up tucked into my back pocket I made a beeline for the main stage. The remainder of the evening was spent in the heart of the Dance Tent, where DJs showcased deep electro beats complete with an outstanding light show. Superb sounds and visuals combined with funky décor made this a great place to try out a few new shapes. And despite the lack of light, the majority of the crowd appeared to be sporting neon-hued shades!

The entrance brings you straight onto the funfair, which consists of waltzers, dodgems and a couple of scary looking rides - guaranteed to unsettle even the strongest of stomachs, mine included - yet for some reason, my sudden obsession with fair ground rides suddenly came to light.

My favourite part of the Saturday - watching Fatboyslim take to the stage, surrounded by lasers, whilst the words 'eat sleep rave repeat' blasted into the audience. (Subsequently the name of a large majority of festival Facebook albums posted online the next day)

Although getting to the event is easy – you simply follow the masses of bright neon-clad festivalgoers; trying to find your abandoned car the next day is not as straightforward.

Saturday was by far the tamer of the two days. Sunday was when the real party started, and shortly after a champagne lunch, we embarked on our second trek to the showgrounds. Bastille and Tom Odell were definitely the highlights!

Although getting to the event is easy – you simply follow the masses of bright neon-clad festivalgoers; trying to find your abandoned car the next day is not as straightforward. Two hours and 38 minutes later we arrived at a field come car park that looked as if it had seen better days – armed with several bags of fresh produce picked up along the way.

I left Jersey Live with a few new feathers to my Indian headdress, neon paint covering me from head to toe and a giant bear hat. Needless to say, I'll definitely be returning again next year...although my fondness for the Waltzers may have fizzled out!

FRANKIE SAYS RELAX

YOU KNOW FRANKIE KNUCKLES. YOU MAY NOT KNOW THAT YOU DO, BUT YOU DO. IF YOU'VE BEEN INTO ANY GENERATION OF DANCE MUSIC OVER THE LAST 30 YEARS YOU'LL HAVE BEEN INFLUENCED BY TUNES HE POPULARISED.

For me it's 'Your Love' - the Jamie Principle track that he span and adopted - it's the sort of tune that makes time shift and the hair on the back of your neck stand up. I first heard it as The Source's 'You got the Love' and then worked backwards. From New York disco to Chicago house music via Detroit techno, just about every area of dance music stems from the music Frankie was spinning before I was born.

As one of the most renowned DJs in the world, Frankie is still packing dance floors with his unique style. Legions of admirers during his travels penned Frankies nickname The Godfather of House the press picked up on it and made it stick. He has played a pivotal role in the creation and evolution of house music, which has become the dominant staple of dance clubs throughout the world. It was this celebrity and his constant fundraising for some of his favorite charities dealing with aids, homelessness, and education of our youth, that garnered him one of the most prestigious honors by the City Of Chicago.

On August 25th 2004, the Mayor of Chicago proclaimed the date Frankie Knuckles day, and a street naming Frankie Knuckles Way. As a Producer and Re-Mixer, Knuckles lent his talents to some of R&B and Pop musics elite. Artists such as Mary J. Blige, Sounds of Blackness, Michael Jackson, Janet Jackson, Diana Ross, Luther Vandross, Michael Bolton and Toni Braxton. Frankies production and mixing career was officially recognized by the music industry in 1997.

He became the first recipient of a Grammy for Remixer of The Year and has served as a Governor and Trustee, for the NYC Chapter of The National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences. As an artist enjoying the success of two Virgin Records releases, Beyond The Mix and Welcome To The Real World . The first album included The Whistle Song which is most memorable as the Lipton Ice Tea commercial in the mid 90's.

In 2001 Definity Records released the single Keep on Movin by Frankie Knuckles featuring vocalist Nicki Richards. The new song opened his Mix album Motivation and was the beginning of the collaboration between Knuckles and Richards 2004 A New Reality release. Billboard Magazine writes in the Album Reviews noteworthy section Knuckles strings together an inspirational and spiritual collection of gospel-infused club songs.

With critical acclaim from nearly every Electronic Dance and Club Culture magazine through out North America and Europe. Definity strategic crossover plan launched with a visibility campaign in Major Chains for Black History Month in February. Reviews in Vibe, Ebony, Black Beat, Essence, and BET made this Motivation album the first Def Mix Productions release to garner recognition with mainstream Afro American press.

Knuckles was back in the USA mainstream with his positive message. The launch of his Motivation world tour put Knuckles message again in the forefront on an International level and Knuckles realizes post 9/11 was a New Reality for him. In 2003 Knuckles released an exclusive mix album for Armani AX which also renewed his positive Message, and introduced the forthcoming studio album. He started digging through the vaults and writing, and came up with his first studio album to release in 7 years.

A New Reality released April 2004 in the USA, UK, Italy, Australia, and Japan simultaneously, and continues to receive media attention. Knuckles Launches his "A New Reality" Tour on the heels of his Bac N da Day success around the globe. Bac N da Day is the first collaboration in 20 years with long time friend, House legend and co writer Jamie Principle. His second single Matter of Time features

Nicki Richards, who is one of the most sought after vocalists in the USA. She works with everyone from Janet Jackson to Stevie Wonder. A breath of fresh air, Nicki is featured on half the album and is backed by some of the most amazing vocalists the business has to offer. She also sings with Will Downing who sings backing vocals for her on What's Goin On.

Knuckles continues to use his celebrity and much of his spare time providing entertainment for various AIDS charity events. He supports anything that has to do with children, noted as saying I cannot stand to hear a child cry of want, hunger, or a lack of love . He has let his services for many past organizations, including Meals on Wheels, GMHC, Pediatric AIDS, and most recently Harvey Milk School.

GET WITH THE INN CROWD: THE IOTP 'RESSURECTION' REUNION WEEKENDER

*Once upon a time, there was a venue in Jersey that local party animals swore blind was the best club on earth:
Inn on the Park.*

The older generation of revellers will remember it well – though the details will no doubt be somewhat hazy, lost in a fog of Mary Ann and alcopops – and Jersey's younger electroheads will no doubt have heard the name spoken of in reverence. For one weekend only, Jersey's top DJs and promoters who were there in those early days of dance music are attaching the defibrillator paddles and pumping a whole bunch of volts into the heart of that fondly-remembered music scene to bring it back to life for one of the island's most eagerly-anticipated dance music events of 2013.

Organised by former IOTP resident DJ and now Jersey Live big cheese Warren Le Sueur, the Inn on the Park 'Resurrection' Reunion Weekender brings together not only a raft of local DJs who provided the soundtrack to many a night at the hallowed venue, but a tasty-looking line up of classic old school DJs and producers, including Jersey favourite, Manchester DJ Nipper, and clubland pioneers Shades of Rhythm.

Day One, on Saturday 12 October, takes place in the Grand Jersey – Inn on the Park's closest neighbour before it was turned into (you guessed it) luxury flats, and features three rooms themed around Inn on the Park and former famous Jersey nightspots: the Inn on the Park room's line up includes DJ Nipper (aka former Hacienda regular and early Warp Records star Kid Unknown), Shades of Rhythm, Liverpool's John Kelly, a live PA set by Rozalla (of 'Everybody's Free' fame) and Warren Le Sueur, whilst the Heroes room hosts DJs Justin Robertson (remixer of the likes of Chemical Brothers, Stone Roses and Bjork), Ian Ossia (Renaissance) and Mick Wilson, formerly of DJ duo Parks & Wilson.

Finally, The Boulevard offers up Italo House sounds from local DJs Biko, Simon Gasston and Stuart King. Day Two, on Sunday 13th, is closed by the Reunion Weekender Finale at the Havana, with Nipper, John Kelly and Biko spinning piano house classics, Le Sueur and Gasston playing progressive house anthems, and DJs Pip and Andy Manson servicing up classic indie bangers galore. For those that were there first time around, little encouragement will be needed to come and celebrate the spirit that brought countless people together at the early stages of a clubland scene which has grown to truly global proportions. To younger folks with an interest in dance music, this weekend will be worth it for the musical history lesson alone.

Gallery caught up with organiser and former Inn on the Park resident DJ Warren Le Sueur, to quiz him on why he's bringing the early 90s ravers back together...

WHY HAVE YOU DECIDED TO CELEBRATE THE INN AFTER ALL THESE YEARS? WHAT WAS SO SPECIAL ABOUT IT?

It was never planned to revisit the IOTP up until the beginning of this year. Approximately three years ago, I set up a closed Inn On The Park Appreciation Society Facebook page and invited people that I knew from my DJ residency at the Inn who had a similar interest in the IOTP All-nighters from the early 90s. This group grew rapidly with people from worldwide locations becoming members and sharing their fond memories of IOTP with each other. Members of the group began to share photos from the all-nighters, favourite songs and so on. Members, over the course of a few years, then began to discuss the possibility of putting together an Inn On The Park Reunion. It was directed towards me to help facilitate it, which has now happened and we are all able to look forward to what is now set to be one of the most anticipated events in Jersey in years.

WHAT ARE YOUR FAVOURITE MEMORIES FROM INN ON THE PARK?

Some of my favourite memories include making lots of friends who I am still close with today. As a DJ, the discovery of huge dance anthems on a regular basis and playing them to 1500 people very two weeks till 6am was special. The period I worked as resident DJ at Inn On The Park, allowed me to work alongside such prolific DJs and producers as Sasha, Laurent Garnier, Carl Cox, Paul Oakenfold, to name a few, which become a great foundation to what I am involved in now; the organising and promoting of Jersey Live Festival and the continuation of bringing world class DJs to the clubs in Jersey.

WILL THIS BE A ONE-OFF EVENT OR WILL IT BE PART OF A SERIES?

The IOTP era was a magical time for the many people who attended. I feel that this Inn On The Park Reunion Weekender should be a one-off event as it has been created for the people by the people. Many are travelling back from as far as Australia to attend the weekender event to visit and reunite with old friends. To do it again would only dilute a unique occasion. This weekender will be a fond memory that people will keep for a long, long time. Let's keep it that way.

IS THIS FOR THE OLDER GENERATION OF RAVERS ONLY, OR WILL YOUNG CLUBBERS ENJOY IT TOO?

There is no age limit to who can attend this weekend of events, however, ticket sales appear to have been generally to people with an average age of forty years old. There are some of the younger generation that will be attending the weekender, as they've been told by their parents how good a time they had back in the day, and how the music back then was way better than what is now... I seem to remember my mum telling me the same about the 60s... I tend to actually agree now!

The Inn on the Park Reunion Weekender takes place at the Grand Jersey on Saturday 12 October and Havana on Sunday 13. Tickets are £27.50 (12th) and £12 (13th) from Eventbrite and White Label Records.

OCTOBER MUSIC & NIGHTLIFE: SIX OF THE BEST

CELEB MEET-AND-GREETs, INDIAN ELECTRO-FOLK, TOP DJs AND LIVE TECHNO ARE A-HAPPENING IN JERSEY THIS MONTH...

ROCKSTEADY PRESENTS... JACKMASTER

Local dance music promoters Rocksteady have truly upped their game this year, with a raft of uber-trendy DJs including Loefah, Duke Dumont and Dense & Pika having already manned the decks for them in 2013. They're not letting the onset of autumn slow them down, with a massive night at the Splash headlined by Numbers co-founder and occasional Radio One host Jackmaster. Renowned for the diversity of his sets - they vary from R&B to Hip Hop to straight up house and techno - his skill is in creating the perfect wave of energy for his crowds to ride all night long, and it's a skill which has taken him from Glasgow warehouse parties to superclubs worldwide. Support in the main room comes from local DJs Ben Newman, John O'Connell and Dan King, while Tharindu and Jagerverb head up proceedings in Room 2.

'SHAKEN NOT STIRRED': THE HIT SONGS OF JAMES BOND

It's a little known fact that when he wasn't busy spying, James Bond was a gifted dubstep producer, and this event sees James performing his biggest dancefloor bangers, live. That's not true. Rather, a ten-piece band perform the hit songs from the 007 series - you can expect John Barry's timeless title score, as well as classics like 'Goldfinger', 'Diamonds are Forever' and 'Live & Let Die.' The concert's followed by a party set of pop covers, from the 60s up to the present day. Let's all neck a load of Martini (shaken not stirred) and go bonkers.

PLUMBER? CLEANER? VALETER?
 MECHANIC? SMALL BUSINESS?

get your business in the directory from just £9.49 per week

We're pretty sure you don't carry the Yellow Pages around with you and I bet you don't browse it every month... it's massive!

We're a big believer in effective 'reminder' advertising at Gallery. For a small business, a whole year of communication means that customers have your details at all times. The directory is designed to allow advertisers a low cost, long term communication solution. It can be used to show an individual corporate presentation or to present individual brands stocked by your business. We'll be trying to gather places that sell the nicest bits, bobs, stuff and desirable items for the home and office.

So we thought we'd give select businesses the ability to tell you all about their services in our monthly Gallery directory. We've even categorised them and arranged them for easy perusal. If you see something you like, give them a call and and tell them you saw them in Gallery! We'll love you forever...

Call 811100 to get yourself included!

Food for thought

Appetite began when we couldn't find a local restaurant guide that would tell us when all our favourite places were open, and what was on the menu. So we decided to write one ourselves.

The fifth edition of Appetite is out now and has all the key features you love about your food annual - easy to navigate sections, sample menus and clear contact details as well as a few extra tasty tidbits like interviews, features and special offers and giveaways for Appetite readers.
